Police arrest young thugs for aggravated battery, mob action

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

After chasing an unnamed victim until he was trapped by passing freight train and beating him nearly senseless, the tables turned on two of the three young men being charged with aggravated battery and mob action.

Brian R. Mozal, 19, of Antioch and Demetrius L. Johnson, 18, of Racine, Wis., as well as Justin C. Baker, 19, of Antioch were all charged with the class 3 and class 4 felonies. The incident took place on Aug. 25.

Though Baker didn't participate in the beating of the victim, Det. Sgt. Craig Somerville said he was equally responsible for furthering the felonies as he drove the car, following the victim from Grass Lake Road and Route 59 until he was finally trapped by the train on Depot Street. "If he just hadn't driven the car after this guy, none of this would have happened," said Somerville, who noted the outcome could have been worse for the victim had he tried to outrun the train. "Had that happened, these guys would have been responsible."

In the end, two of the men received as well as they gave.

Somerville said the case took several unexpected turns and required many hours of investigation. "Initially, Mozal and Johnson appeared to be stabbing victims, but as it turned out, they actually received their injuries while attacking another man," he said. "The real victim in the case, whose name is being withheld, was driving alone in his vehicle when he was followed by the car that occupied Baker, Mozal and Johnson, as well as two unnamed girls."

At about 2 a.m., the Antioch Police Department received notification from the St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan that Mozal and Johnson were being treated for cuts and puncture wounds they claimed were the result of being attacked by unknown assailants in Antioch. At nearly 3:30 a.m., another call came into the police department, but this one from Northern Illinois Medical Center in McHenry about another subject being treated in the emergency room for injuries he claimed occurred in Antioch.

According to Somerville, Mozal was the only one in the car who knew the victim and had harbored a "dislike" for him for some time. The victim, who was traveling alone in his convertible with the top down, was trapped by a passing train-

Sheriff charges Spring Grove man with attempted murder

Facing host of counts after alleged 3-hour assault on girlfriend

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

James W. Kawell, 28, of 39151 Jackson Drive, Spring Grove, was arrested and charged with two counts of attempted murder, six counts of aggravated domestic battery as well as two counts of attempted heinous battery on Aug. 22 for the beating of his 30-year-old girlfriend with whom he lived.

The beating took place between 3-6 a.m. in the apartment the two shared and was reportedly stopped by a female neighbor who knocked on the door after hearing the attack.

"The woman saw how badly beaten her friend was and insisted that she be taken to the hospital," said Sgt. Gary Govekar of the Lake County Sheriff's office. "The victim is still hospitalized, but conscious; she's going to need reconstructive surgery."

Allegedly, Kawell beat the victim with a metal chair, a metal broomstick and repeatedly punched and kicked the victim. "Kawell had doused her in lighter fluid and was holding a lighter in his hand and was ready to set her on fire," said Govekar.

Govekar said neither drugs nor alcohol were involved. "He seems like he had an anger problem," he said.

Once at the Northern Illinois Medical Center in McHenry, Kawell reportedly remained in the neighbor's car. Hospital officials were notified that he was in the car and called the city of McHenry police.

Kawell

When it was determined the incident occurred in a portion of Spring Grove that falls within Lake County, then the case was turned over to the Lake County Sheriff's Office.

Kawell is being held at the Lake County Correctional Facility with his bond set at $900,000. He will appear in court on Sept. 3 at which time a lawyer will be assigned to his case.

Govekar said it is up to the state's attorney to establish an appropriate sentence in the event Kawell is convicted. He said the victim was cooperating fully and that it was not an option for charges to be dropped.

"This woman was badly, badly beaten," said Govekar. "Her injuries were very obvious to say the least. Had the neighbor not intervened, she probably would have been beaten to death."

Motorcycle run supports woman's shelter, community assistance

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

While it's always fun to get together with a group of like-minded motorcycle enthusiasts and take a ride, joining a group leaving out of KC's Cabin at the intersection of Wilmot Road and Route 173 on Sept. 7 supports a worthy cause.

This is the second year that KC's Cabin has held a charity-benefit motorcycle run. Proceeds will support two related organizations: Mother Teresa Home in Antioch and Community Helping Hands.

Both are based in Antioch, but service both Antioch and Lake Villa townships.

The Mother Teresa Home is home for women and children who are experiencing "extraordinary life situations."

Community Helping Hands provides direct assistance to families with daily living necessities while encouraging self-sufficiency. The amount of assistance is based on need for those of either no or low income.

The $20 entry fee includes the 90-mile ride, a baked mostacoli dinner catered by DiMarco's restaurant at the ending point, St. Peter Church, and a chance at winning $200-500 cash. Additionally, there will be live entertainment for dining enjoyment.

The ride leaves at 11:30 a.m. with riders expected to reach the final destination by 4 p.m. For rider comfort, four stops are scheduled along the route.

Non-riders are welcome to participate at the benefit dinner and cash raffle, also available for $20.

"Nearly everything has been donated so about all of the money will go to these organizations," said Marytherese Ambacher, director of the Mother Teresa Home and co-director along with Deacon Scott Keenan (St. Peter Church) of Community Helping Hands.

An additional raffle with the first-, second- and third-place prizes of a 27-inch color television, a DVD player and a portable CD player is available for $20 to anyone, event participant or not. All contributions are tax-deductible to the full extent allowable by law.

Ambacher said this is an important fundraiser for both entities, as the sensitive nature of the organizations requires they maintain a low profile. "Word of mouth and information provided through the Social Justice Office lets those in need know where they can go for help," she said.

Those interested in participating are encouraged to purchase tickets in advance, though it is not mandatory. Tickets can be purchased at KC's Cabin, 815-675-2205; Ipsen Insurance, 847-395-8828; Antioch True Value Hardware, 847-395-4200; or the Social Justice Office, 847-395-0309.

Take advantage of brush pick up

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

There won't be too many more brush pick ups in the village of Antioch before winter sets in, so take advantage of the one upcoming on Monday, Sept. 8.

Village clerk Candi Rowe said it's a good idea to haul brush out to the curb either the night before or very early in the morning. "Public works begins the pick up at about 7 a.m.," she said. "If they drive past your street and nothing is out, you may miss the collection."

Rowe said the public works department schedules these pick-ups the second Monday of each month from April through October or November depending on the weather.

Brush should be no thicker than 2 inches in diameter so the material will fit through the chipper. "They put a pile of the chips by sawmill park from time to time so if residents need it for landscaping, they can come and get some," said Rowe, adding that it's a good idea to call public works to see if any chips are at the park.

Rowe said it typically takes public works a couple of days to make it through the entire village, and that weather or other emergencies occasionally slows the progress.

"If you have stuff sitting outside your house for several days, you may want to call the department to ensure it gets picked up," she said.

Residents will be notified via the village newsletter when the last pick up of the season is scheduled.

Register to vote at Jewel

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Voter registration is being offered at the Antioch Jewel located at the intersection of routes 59 and 173 on both Friday, Sept. 5 from 9 a.m.-noon and Saturday, Sept. 6 from 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

"It takes us a while to process all the voter registration, so we're making preparations for the March 16 (2004) general primary," said Becky Sitz, elections executive in the Lake County clerk's office. The next general election is Nov. 2, 2004.

She stressed that identification with an individual's current, legal address is a must. "What you are allowed to vote for is dependent on where you live," said Sitz. "It determines things like whether you vote in a library district election and other issues that are based on where you live."

Those wishing to register for the first time as well as those in need of updating registration must provide two forms of identification. Primary forms will include the present legal address and are as follows: driver's license, state identification card, valid passport, a utility bill or other contract service bill such as a phone bill.

Sitz said, "We prefer one form to be either a driver's license or state I.D., but that isn't mandatory. Items like utility bills must be postmarked within 30 days for them to be acceptable."

According to Sitz, secondary forms of identification, those that may be used in conjunction with the aforementioned to meet the two-piece requirement, include: military, employment or school identification; birth certificates; social security cards; Veteran Administration patient cards; civic, union or professional membership cards; or library or insurance cards. Photo identification is not required.

Lindenhurst may ban teen tobacco use

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

Lindenhurst may be following in the footsteps of some neighboring communities that have ratcheted tobacco laws up a notch.

Village board members are considering passage of an ordinance that would fine people under 18 for the possession of tobacco.

The board is soliciting input from village residents on this issue, which will come under further discussion at the next Committee-of-the-Whole meeting on Sept. 8 at 6 p.m.

Illinois prohibits minors to use, buy or sell tobacco products, with penalties ranging from $200-$600. Community service is also an available penalty.

An arrest under state law creates a record in the state justice system, while arrests under local ordinances remain on record only within the municipality.

The proposed local ordinance would fine offenders on a scale ranging from $50 for the first offense on up to as high as $750. The amounts would be set if and when the ordinance is drafted.

An exception would be made to allow those under 18 years of age to sell tobacco as employees of retail establishments.

Antioch and Lake Villa have similar ordinances on their books. Antioch's ordinance has fines ranging from $25 for a first offense to $100 for use by minors, and from $50-$250 for the offense of selling tobacco to minors.

Lake Villa's ordinance notes that there is no prohibition of tobacco use under the supervision of parents or guardians in parents' and guardians' homes. It does not provide specific penalties but leaves that to the discretion of the court.

Some discussion arose as to whether the ordinance should address use in the home.

"The way to deal with this is in public," said village attorney Paul Phillips.

"I have a 15-year-old daughter," trustee Mary McCarthy said. "I want to give kids a clear idea of what is not acceptable."

"You can't smoke in some restaurants," trustee Fred Messmer said. "Some people see this as their right."

"This is a family issue," said Mayor Jim Betustak. "Parents should be involved in setting standards. Lake Villa allows minors to smoke in private residences with the permission of parents."

Although Betustak implied that such was not the case with Antioch's ordinance, in fact, the ordinance does not address smoking in private at all.

Trustee Carl Norlin questioned the effectiveness of such ordinances, as well as the feasibility of enforcement.

"We make a lot of laws," he said. "People do a lot of silly things, but passing an ordinance does not make it work. I have not heard of much success."

"Are there fewer teens smoking? I don't think so," Norlin said. "Are there arrests? Probably not many."

"The intent would be to show the village does not support (smoking by minors)," said Betustak.

With local ordinances in place in the three contiguous villages of Antioch, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst, unincorporated areas would fall under state law, with enforcement at the discretion of the county sheriff.

Betustak said he wanted to hear what the community thinks of the proposed ordinance. Comments can be made via e-mail to any of the trustees via links on the village web site at www.lindenhurstil.org, or by telephone, at (847)-356-8252.

Bank offers AARP drivers safety program

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

A class designed specifically for drivers over the age of 50 years old will be held on Sept. 29-30. The course will be held at the First National Bank-Employee Owned (FNBO), located at 485 Lake Street, Antioch.

The class was designed by AARP to address safety issues and help to keep seniors on the road longer. It is also suitable for traffic violators who are required to take a drivers safety course.

"It offers just what a senior should know to keep driving," said Kathy Nixon, activities coordinator at the bank.

Nixon said the course curriculum covers defensive driving, safety tips and information about giving a vehicle a small inspection before driving off. She said, "It also covers any changes there may have been to rules and regulations."

The two-day course runs from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on both Monday and Tuesday. There is a $10 fee that covers the cost of the written materials distributed and the trained instructor who teaches the course. Seniors are not required to be AARP members to participate.

"There is a lot of discussion during the class," said Nixon. "There are films and written material. It's a lot to cover."

Seniors who complete the course are eligible for 10 percent discounts on auto insurance by certain carriers.

Those interested should call Nixon at FNBO at 847-838-2265 to secure a spot in the class. Registration is limited to 35 and enrollment is on a first-come-first-served basis.

Antioch's parks need friends

Don't forget to come out and help the Friends of the Parks this weekend. Both the date and the location of season's last work date have been changed. The session will take place on Saturday, Sept. 6 beginning at 9 a.m. and running through noon.

"Friends usually meet on the last Saturday of the month, but this month that coincides with Labor Day weekend," said Laurie Stahl, director of the parks department. "We're changing the date to the first weekend in September and have moved the location from Williams Park to Jensen park."

Residents and park users are encouraged to come with a willing attitude as well as a couple of tools to help with the clean-up effort.

"It's helpful for those who want to help out to bring their own gloves and possibly a rake or shovel or wheelbarrow," said Stahl.

OUR TOWN

Friends of the Parks welcome anyone wishing to help care for and preserve Antioch's parks for residents in the years to come.

Jensen Park is located on Alima Terrace in the Sequoit Terrace subdivision. Follow Route 83 to First Street (follow jog), west, to Alima Terrace.

For more information, call the parks office at 847-395-2160.

Don't forget that registration is underway for the Antioch Public Library's story times for preschool aged children.

A variety of daytime and evening half-hour sessions have been scheduled between Sept. 15 to Dec. 5. Sessions are offered for three age groups: 2-year-old tots with mom and, 3- to 4-year olds and 4- to 5-year olds.

These sessions are also free of charge, but children must be registered. Registration must be done in person at the children's reference desk.

Registration ends on Sept. 13.

Mozal and Johnson to the Waukegan hospital and dropped them off. The victim contacted family members who transported him to the hospital in McHenry.

"The victim received approximately 30 unanswered punches to the head and was in fear for his life," said Somerville. "This is a classic case of self-defense."

Somerville said the investigation and its success was the result of a team effort made by many members of the Antioch Police Department. "We had potential suspects and victims, in two counties, a very bloody crime scene that included two vehicles in separate locations and conflicting stories. We worked hard on this case and were able to sort out the facts through witness interviews and crime scene analysis.

If convicted, Mozal, Johnson and Baker could receive 2-5 years in prison for aggravated battery, a class 3 felony as well as 1-3 years for mob action, a class 4 felony.

"There was no alcohol use, no drugs, no gang affiliation, no justification whatever for what happened," said Somerville.

ANTIOCH

DUI/accident

Danny A. Runions, Sr., 48, of 41735 Luther Ave., Antioch, was arrested on Aug. 26 at 8:50 p.m. for driving under the influence of alcohol after allegedly causing an accident. Witnesses said they saw him disobey a traffic signal and hit another car causing it to spin 360 degrees.

The officer at the scene detected the strong odor of alcoholic beverage on Runions' breath. Runions failed all field sobriety tests requested of him and tested at .23 blood alcohol concentration on a portable breath test.

He was arrested and issued citations for disobeying a traffic control device and DUI. At the Antioch Police Department, he agreed to chemical testing that resulted in .27 blood alcohol concentration.

Runions was issued additional citations for failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and DUI over .08.

He was held in a cell as he told police he did not have bail and wasn't interested in trying to call to raise it. Runions was eventually released on personal recognizance pending his Sept. 30 court date.

Warrant/revoked

Diego R. Rodriguez, 19, of 431 N. Jackson, Waukegan, was arrested on warrant and for driving with a revoked driver's license on Aug. 30 at 9:30 p.m. at 267 Route 173.

Police stopped to talk to Rodriguez after receiving a report of suspicious suspect that fit his and the car's description. He told the officer that he had stopped at the location to make a phone call and to have a conversation with a female passenger in the parking lot.

A check through LEADS/SOS came back with information that Rodriguez' driver's license was revoked and that he was wanted on a $10,000 warrant through Lake County for failure to appear. He was arrested and issued a citation for driving while revoked.

Rodriguez was placed in a cell to await bond for the warrant and was released when it arrived and after receiving a Sept. 17 court date.

Suspended driver's license

George J. Staranowicz, 43, of 41074 Route 173 was arrested for driving while suspended on Aug. 29 at 2:45 p.m. at the intersection of routes 83 and 173.

Police observed his vehicle traveling up the middle of the median just south of Route 173. Staranowicz told police his driver's license was revoked and that was confirmed through LEADS.

He was arrested and issued citations for improper lane usage and driving while suspended and released on personal recognizance pending his Sept. 24 court date.

Sarah L. Smith, 39, of 291 Oakridge Court, Antioch, was arrested for driving while suspended on Aug. 29 at 8:24 a.m. on Depot near the Lower Grade School.

Police saw her drive past two school buses with their stop arms out.

Smith told police her driver's license was suspended and that was confirmed through LEADS/NCIC. She was arrested and issued citations for passing an unloading school bus and driving while suspended.

Smith was released on personal recognizance pending her Sept. 24 court date.

LAKE VILLA

Disorderly conduct

Sammy G. Lile, 24, of 252 Dittmer Lane, Lindenhurst, was arrested by Lake Villa Police on Aug. 22, at 2:49 p.m., at the Subway sandwich shop at 300 N. Milwaukee Ave., Lake Villa. Police were called regarding a disturbance at the store. Lile told police his 19-year-old girlfriend had been fired and he was upset about it. The complainant, the young woman's 34-year-old male employer, said Lile made threats such as, "You call the cops and I'll kick your a--." He was charged with disorderly conduct and was served a notice to appear in Grayslake Branch III court, on Oct. 8, at 1:30 p.m.

AAUW to host legislators at Sept. meeting

American Association of University Women (AAUW), Waukegan Area Branch, will meet 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 9, in the Waukegan Library, 128 N. County St.

The Waukegan Area Branch of AAUW includes members from Antioch, Beach Park, Gages Lake, Grayslake, Gurnee, Lake Villa, Lindenhurst, North Chicago, Round Lake, Wadsworth, Waukegan, Winthrop Harbor and Zion. Membership is open to those from other communities, as well.

In addition, the branch has interest groups that meet monthly or bi-monthly, such as Book Review, Exploring Our History, Film, Reflections on Reading (group book discussion) and Travel, and is open to forming new groups as members desire.

Sweet Adelines welcomes new members

Women are invited to sing along with the Westosha Lakes Chorus, a chapter of Sweet Adelines International. The group meets every Thursday night from 7-9:30 p.m. at the Christ Lutheran Church in Paddock Lake, Wis.

The Westosha group began with five members and has since grown to 35 members. Community singing engagements that often break into smaller quartets or mother/daughter combinations are its mainstay.

"We may be small, but we have big ideas," said Chrystl Olson, in charge of public relations for the chorus.

The chorus got its start about two years ago and is eager to continue to grow and share the Barbershop art form with other women. It performs a variety of different styles including straight barbershop, contemporary, country/western and patriotic songs.

Polly Merrill directs the chorus and brings years of Sweet Adeline experience to the rehearsals.

Christ Lutheran Church is located near the intersection of Highway 50 and Route 83.

Olson said, "If you enjoy singing or would like ongoing vocal training in a fun and friendly atmosphere, come join in the music and fun."

For more information, call Olson at 262-862-6603. For an Illinois exchange, call Dede Umland at 847-356-8356.

Cosmic Bowling tickets demand high, limited available

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Time is running out to purchase tickets for the fourth annual mother/son cosmic bowling date night. "This is a very popular event," said Laurie Stahl, parks and recreation department director. "Tickets are limited to 70 couples."

The event will take place on Sunday, Sept. 14 at the Antioch Bowling Lanes from 6-8 p.m. The evening will feature cosmic bowling, Scotch doubles and crazy bowling. Bumper bowling will be made available upon request.

The fee to attend is $15 per couple for Antioch residents and $25 for non-residents. Moms with more than one son won't have to make a choice which one to bring; $5 per child covers the cost for extras.

Ticket sales open up to non-residents after Sept. 2.

Pizza and pop will be served, rental shoes will be provided and a memorable photo will be given to each couple as part of the admission price. This is a family event, no smoking or drinking will be allowed.

Register at the parks and recreation department office located at 806 Holbeck Drive. For more information, call 847-395-2160.

"We sold out of tickets early last year, and expect that we will do the same again this year," said Stahl. "Those wanting to attend shouldn't wait to get their tickets."

Huskies' heaven is found

He wears No. 32, and for 10 more games, the uniform may as well be a target for opposing defenses' pep talks and plans for those who face Northern Illinois University.

North Chicago's Michael "The Burner" Turner is big time, with everything from a Heisman candidate mention to invitations to post-season all-star games secured. And then there's the T-shirts, secret sauce, seven pages of references in the NIU media guide and notebooks. He and the Huskies hope to end their senior years with a bang, and we're not talking about a fireworks display.

The first step in that regard thrilled a Huskie Stadium sellout crowd of 28,018 when the Huskies beat Maryland 20-13 in overtime. Maryland came in ranked as high as No. 14 in the Associated Press pre-season poll.

A balanced offense kept the focus off Turner for most of the game, but when it counted, he delivered key runs on a long fourth-quarter drive. He finished with 88 yards in an offense that featured 300 yards in passing from quarterback Josh Haldi and the catching of P.J. Fleck (113 yards). Fleck and Dan Sheldon caught TD passes, with Sheldon's coming on the third play of overtime.

Novak said he was surrounded by players and just joined in the celebration afterward, NIU's version of the immaculate reception.

"A lot of teams will be placing an extra guy in the box to try and stop Mike. That is why it is so important for Haldi and the receivers to play well," said Novak.

Turner is working on the little things to make himself an all-rounds player. There were no 82-yard runs this night, but plenty of punishing 5-yard runs. He averaged 159 yards per game in 2002, and had nearly 300 yards against Western Illinois last year.

"It feels great to throw a block. We got sacked a lot last year, so we wanted to block better and help out. I'll just do anything to help the team win," Turner said.

He tries to take all the talk in stride, but sometimes it is, such as a cover story on USA Today, somewhat overwhelming.

He said there have been no regrets after a four-year stint at NIU en route, hopefully, to a NFL backfield near you. NIU, after all, was the first school to offer the former Warhawk a scholarship.

"We knew (Turner) was good. We heard about him all summer, and I watched them against Wake Forest and Wisconsin last year. Turner has a burst, more so than we saw on tape. I have a lot of respect for Northern Illinois. They're a good team, sound fundamentally. They deserved to win," said Maryland head coach Ralph Friedgen. "You could see it happening. NIU had the momentum and it is tough to get it back."

"Selfishly, I would have to say that it was our greatest win. You only have a brief window of opportunity against nationally-ranked teams. It is a game that we will remember for the rest of our lives," said Novak.

The Huskies have a challenging schedule, with Iowa State and Alabama looming before starting the drive to be in the MAC title game Dec. 4. Novak was the MAC Coach of the Year for last year's 8-4 exploits. The Huskies have won back-to-back MAC West titles.

People don't know much about the MAC. I think that NIU should get some votes in the coaches' poll. I'll vote for us, but I'm not sure if it will be 1 or 2," Novak said, with the top two reference tongue-in-cheek.

Tennessee Tech is next, Sept. 6 in DeKalb.

Note: The celebration in DeKalb was also a fun one for former Round Lake player Dallas Bassett, a reserve linebacker. Cassie Claggett, a Grant High graduate, was making her debut as a NIU cheerleader.

Sequoit football takes big step in right direction

By JOHN PHELPS
Lakeland Correspondent

Sounds crazy, but sometimes a loss can be a good thing.

Even though they had just fallen to Niles West 32-21 in the season-opener, the Antioch varsity football team learned plenty about themselves heading into their contest at Elgin Larkin Fri., Sept. 5 beginning at 7:30 p.m. And it's all positive.

"We came back after being down by 19 points down (to Stevenson) four years ago. But I can't remember the last time we came back from a 20-point deficit," said 15th year head coach Del Pechauer. "I can tell this is going to be a fun team this year, especially if we play the way we did today. We should be very entertaining."

Pechauer is right on the money on both accounts.

A packed house could have folded the tents after the Sequoits spotted the Indians a 20-0 cushion early in the second quarter.

But then a funny thing happened. It was almost magical.

Senior running back Tom Rompella rumbled in from 23 yards out to cut the lead to 20-7 with 5:04 left in the half. Fans who might have been quick to go get that hot dog or hamburger were stopped in their tracks only to realize, maybe they had better stay put.

Good thing they did as the fireworks were just starting.

Senior linebacker Kyle Stigler's punishing hit enabled Rob Calendine to promptly recover a fumble two plays into the Indians ensuing drive and all of a sudden Antioch was once again in business.

"I think that was a big turning point as far as momentum," said Pechauer. "I remember they jumped on us early on in last year's opener (ultimately a 42-17 loss) and our heads were down. Today, we regained our focus and came right back at them."

Seven plays after the Calendine fumble recovery, Nate Hughes pounded, literally pounded, his way to the end zone from 18 yards away and all of a sudden you had a 20-14 ballgame heading into the locker room.

"Nate's a pretty powerful runner," said Pechauer. "He worked hard in the off-season."

Echoed Rompella: "Our running game should be pretty good this year. Even though we lost, this was fun today. We've definitely improved from a year ago. We realize we have a team this year."

Rompella finished the day 93 yards on 16 carries and the score.

But besides Rompella and Hughes, opponents better watch out for Nick Nathan, an equally bruising type of runner.

In fact, it was Nathan's 13-yard bolt that capped a beautiful, ball-controlled 12-play, 80-yard drive that gave the hosts a 21-20 lead with 5:52 left in the third.

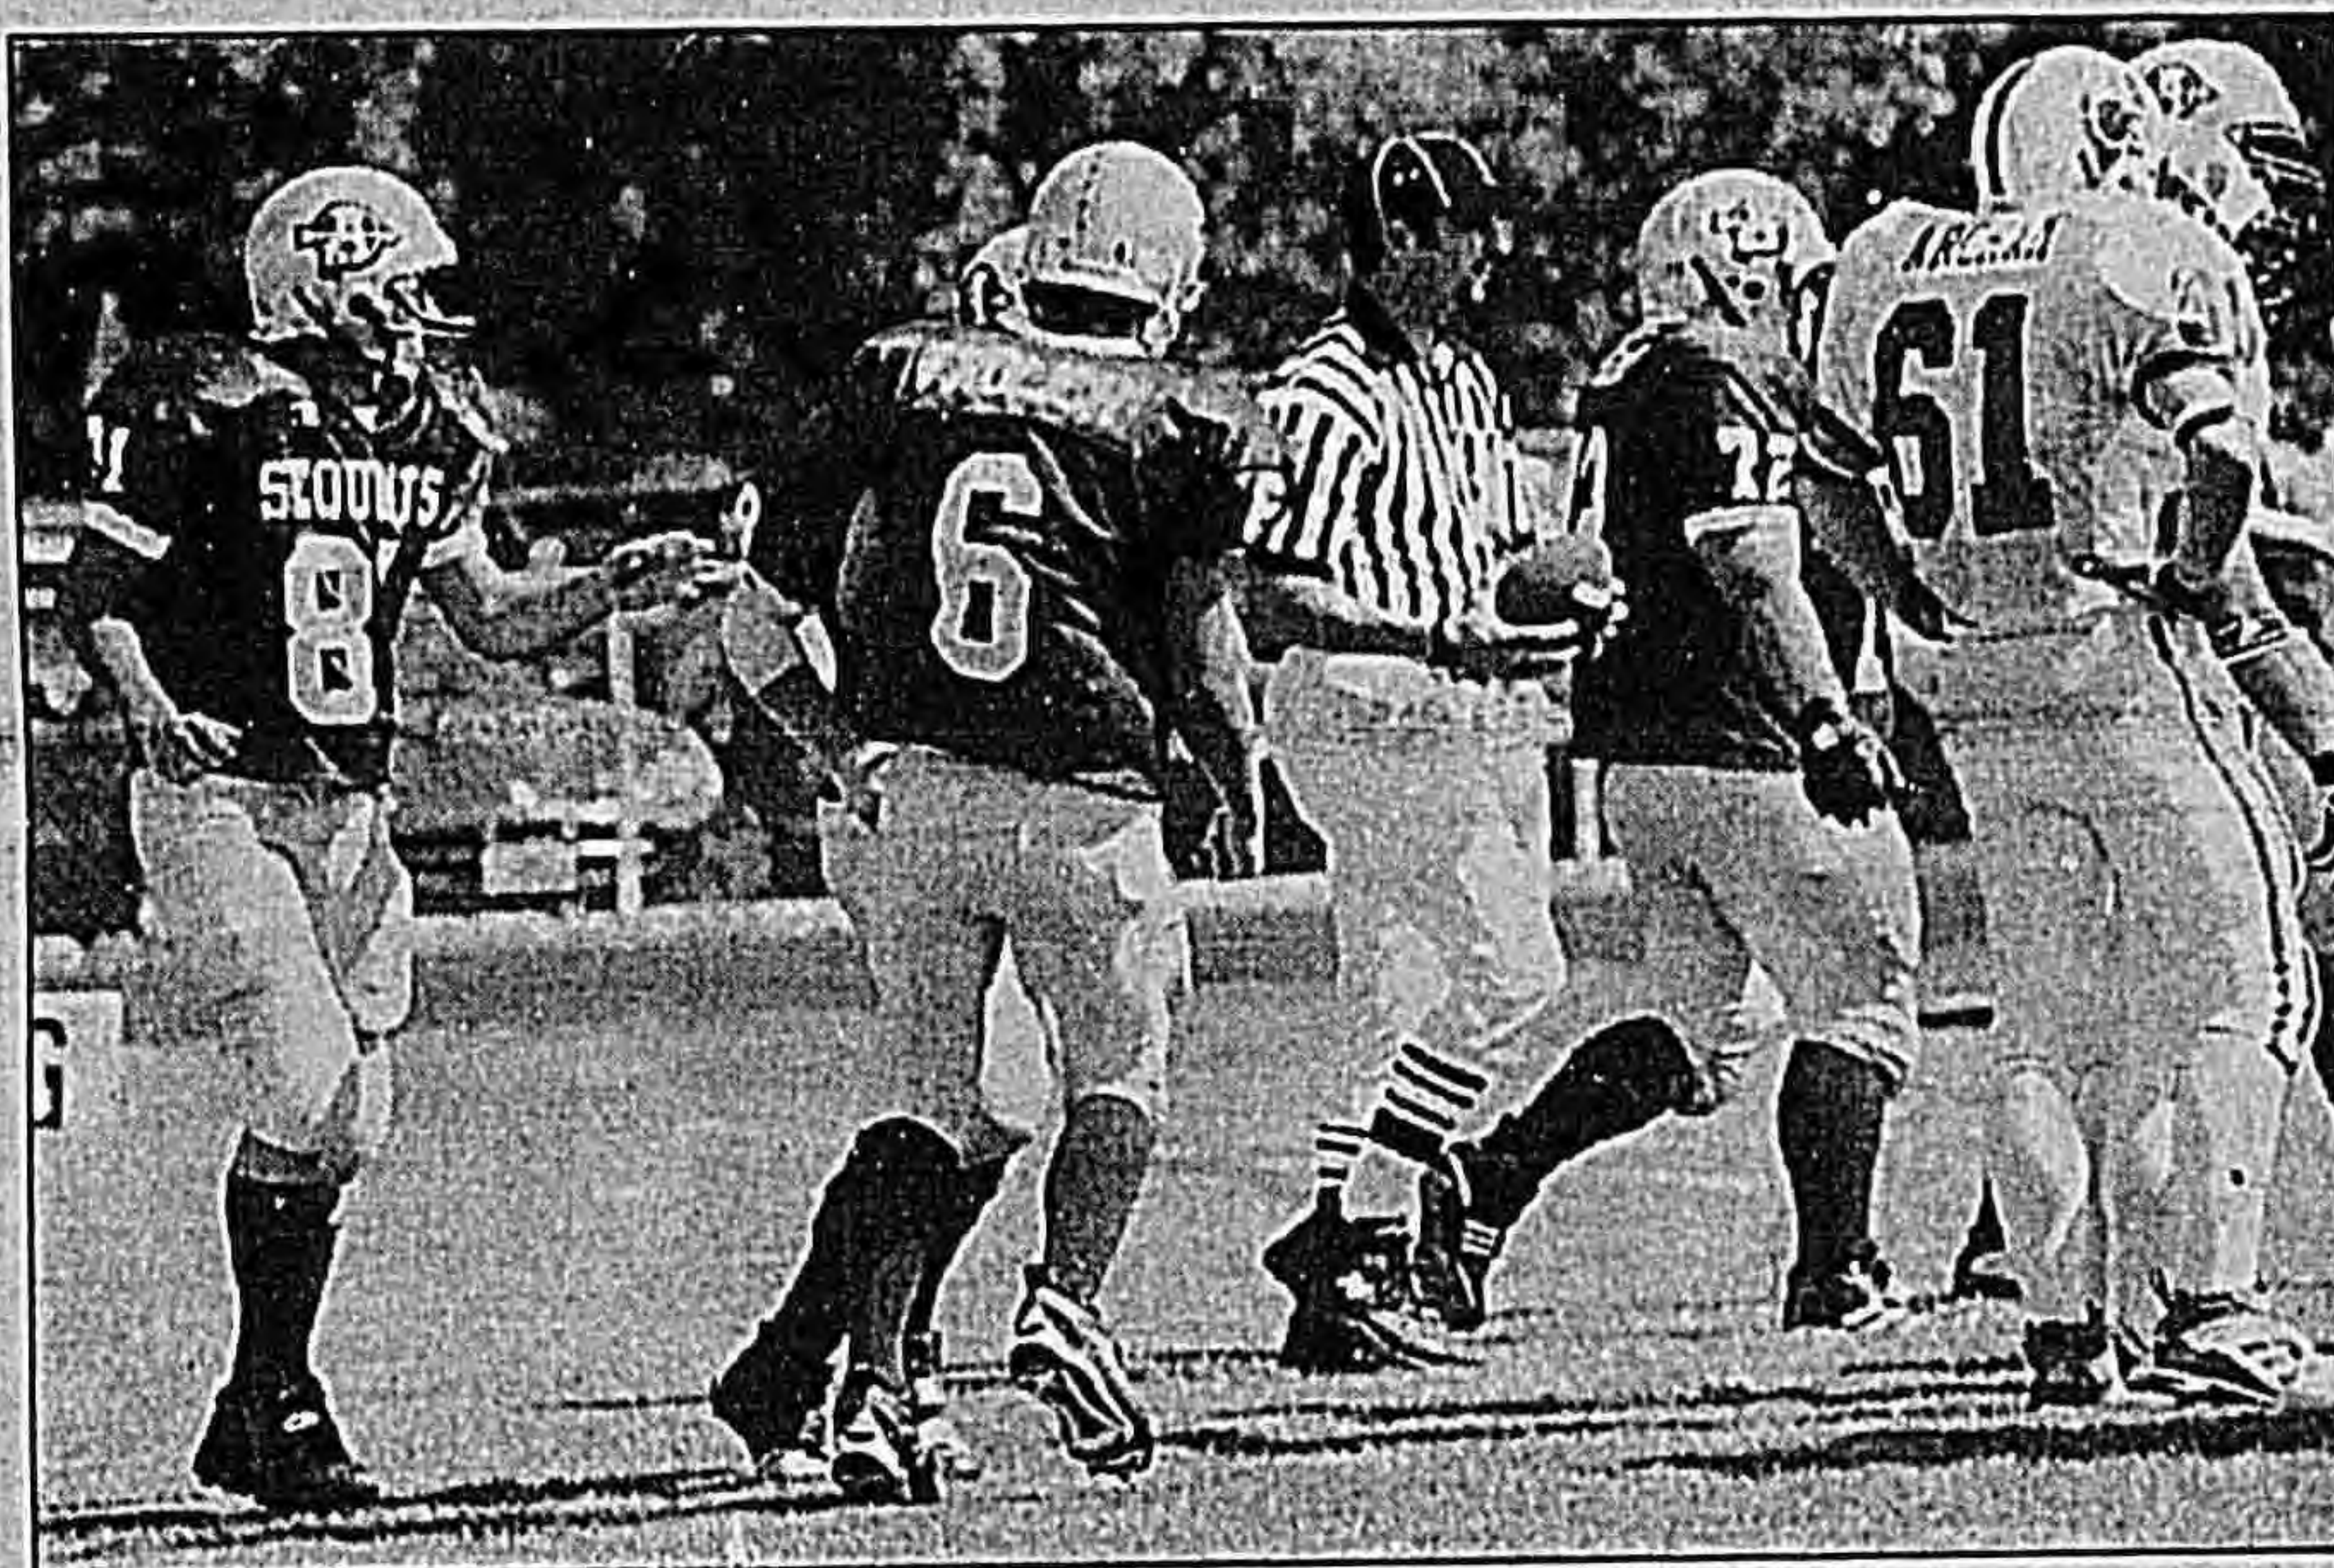

"That was a great drive," said Pechauer. "If we can continue to put together drives like that, teams are going to have some trouble stopping us."

Nathan topped the century mark with 102 yards on 14 attempts while Hughes added 45 yards on five carries.

Senior signal-caller Randy Frolich also showed toughness, having had his bell rung a few times. But he stayed in the game each time and finished completing 7-of-16 passes for 84 yards.

His primary target, as the catches were pretty evenly distributed, was wideout Marshall Perry. Perry finished with 41 yards on four catches.

For the game, Antioch rolled up 358 yards of total offense.

Even though Niles West scored the game's final 12 points, the Sequoit defense made them earn every bit of it. Better yet, they made them feel it.

"I can't remember the last time we hit that hard," said Reggie Hughes, who mainly works with the secondary and assists defensive coach Mike Gordy. "I'm excited about what we have this year. The potential is definitely there."

And hard hits usually translate into big plays.

Ryan Naes recorded a sack, Chris Kiddoo picked off a second quarter pass and Taylor Pechauer recovered a fumble late in the game.

"Man, we wanted that game," said Kiddoo, a senior captain and defensive end. "We hit real hard today. I think we're going to be one of the hardest hitting teams in the North Suburban."

Even Niles West had nothing but praise for Antioch.

"They hit very hard today and are much improved from last year," said junior running back and University of Illinois-bound Rashard Mendenhall.

Antioch tennis tops Grant in NSC crossover

By ROB BACKUS
Sports Editor

Although Antioch graduated nine members from last year's squad, including three of its four state qualifiers (Ashleigh Honaker, Dina Izenstark and Jen Buhrmester), head coach Bryan Plinske still expects a strong showing from his team.

"The season should shape up positively," Plinske said. "We're really a young team and we'll experience some difficulties. But things are looking bright."

The one leading player Antioch does return is its final state qualifier from last year's squad, senior Ashley Jensen, who moves from doubles to singles this year.

The Sequoits are already off to a good start on the season, moving to 2-1 with a 5-0 win over Grant.

Winners for Antioch were: Jensen (No. 1 singles) 6-2, 6-4, Kelly Poplawski (No. 2 singles) 6-1, 6-1, Natalie Stewart and Lindsay Clutter (No. 1 doubles) 6-3, 6-3, Sam Edwards and Kara Heggen (No. 2 doubles) 6-1, 6-2 and Amanda Peters and Katy Fries (No. 3 doubles) 6-3, 6-2.

"The meet went well," Plinske said. "The girls did a lot of good things and improved on the stuff we worked on in practice. The balls didn't always go over the net, but that will happen with time."

Two players Plinske was especially pleased with were Edwards and Heggen at No.

2 doubles.

"Sam and Kara really came into their own today," Plinske said. "They never played together before this season, but they were communicating well on the court and actually switched duties in the second set."

Plinske knows his team isn't in the class of Stevenson and Lake Forest, but he still likes what he has seen so far.

"This is a rebuilding year," Plinske said. "We're going to have trouble with the elite teams but we always do. But we can give teams a run for their money and surprise some people."

Antioch will be on the road for three meets, against Waukegan on Sept. 4, at Cary-Grove on Sept. 6 and at Wauconda on Sept. 9.

Nothing beats the thrill of shooting a ball through a clown's mouth

For every Tiger Woods there are hundreds of golfers who have never played a PGA course, wouldn't know a wood from a woodpecker and think a caddy is a luxury automobile.

As one of them, my points of reference for golfing differ somewhat from PGA standards.

My idea of a golf course is something that looks like Las Vegas, only much tinier.

After all, who would not want to swing a putter through such a collection of obstacles: pyramids, a gigantic golden lion, the Eiffel Tower, a volcano and even a cartoonish representation of New York City, complete with Coney Island roller coaster?

Other aficionados of miniature golf prefer something closer to a "real" golf course, with moguls and sand traps.

According to GOLF Magazine's Encyclopedia of Golf, mini-golf dates back to 1916, when James Barber built a miniaturized version of a golf course on his estate in North Carolina. He mimicked the features of a regular golf course with little sand traps and small pools of water.

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER Staff Reporter

During the Depression, odds and ends such as old tires and pipes were introduced as obstacles and hazards. With the invention of "Tom Thumb" golf at Garnet Carter's resort in Tennessee, using more fanciful obstacles, such as fairy tale characters, "fantasy" golf courses grew in popularity; and Carter's franchised courses sprung up all over the country.

By 1930, there were 30,000 miniature golf courses in American cities and suburbs. Some sat on rooftops, while others sprawled in fields.

In 1953, Don Clayton, founder of Putt-Putt Golf, disgusted by all the "gimmickry," created straightforward putting courses.

Such seriousness was short-lived, as two years later, Lomma Enterprises, still one of the biggest manufacturers of miniature golf courses, revived the goofy obstacles, forcing mini-golfers to putt through revolving windmill blades and moving statuary.

In order to stave off boredom, as golfers get familiar with bizarre obstacles and the novelty wears off, Lomma offers mini-golf operators a "swap shop," trading out old obstacles and features for new ones.

Fortunately, for those of us of the puttering persuasion, there are multitudes of choices in Lake County.

Although I am sure I missed a few prime spots, I spent some time this month visiting several of the county's most diverse mini-courses.

My first stop was at the "king" of miniature courses, Par-King in Lincolnshire. The course is one of two in the Chicago area, and has been operating for 40 years.

As you drive on Milwaukee Avenue (Route 45/21), just south of Aptakisic Road, you can't miss the Pepto-Bismol pink castle turrets that mark its entrance.

It is actually two 18-hole courses. One encircles another, and both are filled with a wild variety of the kind of novelty obstacles that are the hallmark of the "fantasy" style of mini-golf course.

Par-King's obstacles are exceptional in that many are animated. The golf ball provides some of the kinetic energy for several of them, such as the roller coaster hole and the treacherous 18th hole, a roulette wheel that randomly can determine how many strokes you accumulate.

I caught up with the Conner family, vacationing from Pittsburgh, as they attempted to navigate the 18th hole.

Blair Conner, 8, said he liked the roller coaster hole the best. It takes the ball up an elevator, and deposits it on a coaster track on its way to the hole or someplace near the hole, if you are lucky.

Not far from Par-King, there's a new novelty course in town. Located in the new City Park shopping mall on Parkway Drive, almost directly across Milwaukee Avenue from Par-King, the course is one of a national chain called Putting Edge.

The gimmick is that it is not only indoors, but also in the dark. The putter blades and balls are painted with fluorescent colors, as are the obstacles and décor. Everything else is dark, lit only by ultraviolet lighting.

It is at once eerie and intriguing. The only real challenge to the course, however, is the distraction of the darkness. The holes are relatively straightforward.

Isaac Greenspon, 10, of Long Grove, found the course easier than Par-King.

"I like the dark and the light up stuff," he said. "And if I get a hole-in-one I get a free pass for another game."

Isaac has been to several birthday parties at the course and he thought they were a lot of fun. Party pack-

Living history, surviving today

Right now my son is advancing on the Third Reich dressed in WWII camouflage. Wearing oversized army surplus and a plastic helmet, he's crawling on his belly through our front yard. What courage. He's willing to face the enemy armed only with a kit bag that looks a lot like my laundry bag and a curtain rod rifle.

That cinches it. My kids don't need any help with role-playing. But I give in when it comes time for Lakewood Forest Preserve's 12th Annual Civil War Days. I always have three recruits eager to watch history repeat itself at Illinois' largest Civil War re-enactment.

Thanks to the dedication of hundreds of Civil War buffs, none of us were disappointed at this eerily realistic encampment. I half expected Rhett Butler to sweep away my eight-year-old Scarlett O'Hara—but not before she checked out the ladies dresses in the period shopping emporiums.

By the way, now I think I know why many 19th century ladies didn't make it past middle age. It was ninety plus degrees that day, so those belles serenely floating by in heavy hoop skirts and long sleeves didn't fool me one bit—one good hot flash and I'd be streaking the front lines.

Luckily, refreshments were available. We passed up the dill pickles and pickled eggs, and made a beeline for an "authentic" 1860's Ben & Jerry's vendor.

We also discovered that major credit cards truly do go anywhere you go, even if it's back in time. You see, my boys had passed the rigorous Union recruitment exam so we needed to purchase muskets. (Thanks to a serious investment in orthodontia, they had the necessary "four front teeth to rip open a gun powder bag".)

With so much to see—and nervous new recruits—we skipped the chance for a leg amputation at the Union medic's tent to listen to Harriet Tubman, Abraham Lincoln and the average Joe on the battleground.

In the Confederate camp we found a couple willing to describe the finer points of Civil War etiquette. The missus, Gina Gianini-Camp of Streamwood, had just returned from making social calls. She explained that tea parties were "de rigueur" during this period, and every lady brought her own teacup in a basket (so much for my rolling cooler filled with crushed ice and lemon wedges).

Enough of the niceties—my guys were ready for action. The Blue and Gray were fighting in a nearby field, so the boys ran to watch before the Union Cavalry rumbled by. But I knew I didn't even have to step on the battlefield to end up a present day casualty.

Sure enough, I'm now picking up enough Civil War paraphernalia around the house to start my own Living History Day. But then again, maybe I'd better wait awhile. I just looked out the front window to see my middle son diving for cover behind the azaleas. He's looking mighty dapper in a suit coat, dress shirt and tie, with Dad's old attaché case handcuffed to his wrist. Anyone know where there's a Cold War re-enactment?

During her almost 40-year career, Taylor has received just about every award the blues world has to offer. She received Grammy nominations for six of her last seven Alligator albums, and won a Grammy in 1984. Her latest album "Royal Blue" is described by People magazine as "foot-stomping music that's rough, raw and wonderfully upbeat." Recorded in Chicago, the 12 songs, including four Koko originals, range from rocking blues to powerful slow blues. "There are many kings of the blues," said the Boston Globe, "but only one queen. Koko's voice is still capable of pinning a listener to a back wall."

Tickets are $27 for the general public; $25 for CLC students, staff and alumni members and seniors 65 and over; and $12 for children under 12. For tickets, call the box office at 847-543-2300.

Schumann." Performances begin at 8 p.m. at the Drake Theatre, Barat Campus of DePaul University in Lake Forest.

we look at every mammogram twice.

We know a mammogram isn't your favorite experience, so it's important to you that the evaluation be as accurate as possible. Perhaps you'd even like a second opinion. So would we. That's why the radiologists at Lake Forest Hospital subject every mammogram to a Second Look.™

Second Look is a sophisticated computer-aided mammography screening tool that enhances diagnostic reliability. Second Look is just part of the thorough, thoughtful way we do mammograms at our Breast Care Center in Lake Bluff and at our Medical Buildings in Gurnee and Vernon Hills. A CONVERSATION WITH
DAN IRELAND

DIRECTOR OF "PASSIONADA"

Dan was planning to come to Chicago to promote his new romantic comedy "Passionada" a few weeks ago, but the East Coast blackout caused so many transportation disruptions that he had to cancel his trip. Recently, he did the interview over the telephone from his home in California.

"Everyone loves redemption and this movie is about second chances at life and love," he said. What Dan likes best about the film is "the spirit and heart and soul of it. It's the most simple film I've made as far as story is concerned, but to get it right was a tough, tough thing. It has a universal message of second chances, being open to love, being open to life. The hope and the heart."

"My mother was deserted by my father when we were young. She did not want to go out with other men, so eventually we would set her up on dates; unfortunately, with disastrous consequences." As this is a key element of the story, Ireland felt "there was a little tinge of connection when I read the script. I could relate to the fire of the Portuguese culture...there is a lot of passion that these people have, hence, where the title came from...Passionada."

The talent in the film is so outstanding that many questions were about the actors. You've seen Jason Isaacs as a villain in "The Patriot" and "Harry Potter," and Sofia Milos as a hard-nosed detective in "CSI - Miami." Here their roles are direct opposites of what you have come to expect.

Isaacs plays the bad guy very well, and Ireland described him as "incredible as a female impersonator in 'Sweet November' (Charlize Theron & Keanu Reeves). This showed that he had a comedic side in addition to being a great bad guy. In the film Sofia Milos is a working class widow with a teenage daughter, and she sings achingly beautiful songs in "fado" (an operatically soulful, blues-like Portuguese folk music) in local nightclubs. Ireland said, "Sofia was a gift from God. She was the toughest to cast. When she walked into the room, I was thinking, 'make her as good as she looks'." She was.

Dan says of "Passionada," "One of the things I wanted to do with this film is to challenge the audience yet succeed in making people feel good." He clearly seems to understand the heart, and for those who like romantic films that are not corny melodramas, "Passionada" will be a pleasant experience.

Take a good story, mix in intoxicating music with characters you care about and you have a picture that gives you passion.

Secret Lives: Hidden Children and Their Rescuers During WWII

Director

Aviva Slesin

Starring

Hilary Swank, Aaron Eckhart

In the early 1940's, as Hitler's plan for the "Final Solution" was in overdrive, some Jewish parents were able to place their children in "foster" care with non-Jewish families. Academy Award winning director Aviva Slesin was one of these children who, at the age of nine months, was smuggled in a suitcase to a family that kept her for more than two years.

The families that cared for these children would say that it was their child, unless neighbors became suspicious. In one case a child had to be moved 18 times to remain safe. The "rescuers" in this film accepted the children because they thought it was the right thing to do. They did so at great risk to their families, as laws were passed allowing that those guilty of aiding and abetting Jews would be shot, hanged or sent to concentration camps to suffer the same fate as the Jews.

There are bitter lessons here about what courage, love and self-identity truly mean. After just a few years, a 5-year old, when reunited with her mother, told her to take her Jewish hands off of her as the mother tried to remove the lice covering the child's body. To survive, the child had to not think like a Jew but a Hitler

Gentile. After a period of healing, it was comforting to hear the 85-year-old mother say that "now she loves me."

There's a lesson to be learned here about our own culture, and the society of these United States. You can see what 24-36 months of damage can do to a family's structure and one's self-image. If someone had to endure similar disruption to his or her family for 400 years of slavery, issuing an emancipation proclamation is not a cure—nor is 100 years of Jim Crow treatment. Ironically, it was the advent of WWII that led to the desegregation of the US military and other changes and by 1964 the Civil Rights Act was passed. Good things really can happen for seemingly the wrong reasons. Movies like this show that we can indeed learn from one another and that understanding our history (the complete story) is as important as reading, writing and arithmetic.

ages, including pizza and soft drinks, are available.

Nearby, on Route 83, immediately north of Aptakisic, Bally Bunion offers a more traditional golf experience.

Sitting right alongside a professional driving range, the miniature 18-hole course is a stunning replica of a real golf course, complete with water traps and "sand traps" of a synthetic material.

Each hole is challenging, with moguls and "rough" spots. This course is not only a good place to bring the family, but a place where a dedicated golfer can practice driving balls at the Golf Learning Center, and then get a serious putting workout on the miniature course.

A quiet step back to the 1950s style of novelty golf can be found at Golfarama, on Sheridan Road in Beach Park.

Although the neighborhood looks a bit shabby, with no amenities nearby, the course has a kind of nostalgic charm.

The obstacles are all made of wood. Mario, who owns the course, keeps them all freshly painted. The tiny grass areas between holes are manicured, with some plants labeled.

Players find the course challenging and entertaining. Although a windmill and a Ferris wheel are the only true kinetic obstacles, the others, including an Eiffel Tower (there it is again!) and a bowling alley are amusing.

Heading south on Rand Road, I found the best and the worst of the "scenic" style of mini course.

In Wauconda, Golf Farm appeared to be an afterthought to the driving range and the restaurant and bar. Although it was not being played at the time of my visit, there were a number of abandoned beer bottles dotting the concrete landscape.

Just a few yards from the highway, it was noisy and unattractive. The course itself is moderate in difficulty, with some moguls and a few obstacles.

It was a sharp contrast to Cozzi's Adventure Golf and Games, a bit further south on Rand, in Lake Zurich.

Cozzi's offers miniature golf in a Hawaiian style setting, with lush greenery, waterfalls and a volcano.

The course is heavily played by both children and adults. It offers challenging holes, including a tricky 18th hole that sends your ball down a narrow path, teasingly close to a water hazard.

Cozzi's, like Kristof's in Round Lake Beach, is in an amusement complex that is smaller than an amusement park, but larger than an arcade, offering batting cages and arcade games, as well as beverage and food service, making the visit more than just puttering around.

Kristof's also offers bowling, pool, go-carts and a teen Karaoke night (as well as adult Karaoke). Its mini-golf course, scenic with some decorative features, has a mixture of challenging holes, with hills and moguls, as well as holes that are more straightforward. A hole-in-one at the difficult 18th hole earns a free game.

The course is near the street, but is shielded by greenery and the muffling sounds of water features throughout.

Although I did not visit it, I was informed that Highland Park Golf Learning Center has a handicapped accessible course. None of the other courses as I saw would have accommodated a wheelchair. Several of the park districts run miniature golf courses and some hold tournaments.

For those who take the game seriously, there is a "pro" organization, called the U.S. ProMiniGolf Association (USPMGA). They can be reached by telephone at 843-458-2585 or 449-6858, or by e-mail at pro@usprominigolfassn.com.

Although a Tiger on the golf course might inspire the "big" golf pros, I'll take a laughing clown and a windmill every time.

Kiesgen walks away from his life's work

Grant Twp.—Township trustees accepted the resignation of long-time Highway Commissioner Jack Kiesgen, who said he was leaving a job "I love" because of ill health. Kiesgen, 62, started employment with the department in 1962 as a highway crewman. He was appointed to succeed the late Jack Smith as highway commissioner in 1979. As a candidate he was undefeated.

Guilty verdict in Wauconda Twp.—Robert Luga, 22, was convicted by a Lake County jury Aug. 29 for the attempted murder of Island Lake resident, Manuel Baltier, 26. Luga, and Eric Kelleher, 22, of Elmhurst, befriended Baltier in an Island Lake sports bar in the early hours of April 22 and later drove him to a secluded area in Port Barrington, beat and robbed him of his winnings from a dart competition and left him unconscious in a ditch, police said. Luga has a court date Sept. 26 for sentencing. He faces between 6-60 years in prison.

2 teens arrested for battery, mob action

Antioch—After chasing an unnamed victim until he was trapped by a passing freight train and beating him nearly senseless, the tables turned on two of the three young men being charged with aggravated battery and mob action, police said. Brian R. Mozal, 19, of Antioch and Demetrius L. Johnson, 18, of Racine, Wis., as well as Justin C. Baker, 19, of Antioch were all charged with the class 3 and class 4 felonies.

Village considers its own health inspector

Vernon Hills—The village is considering various options including possible formation of its own health department to keep updates on health codes and inspections. It is not the first community to look into offering their own health department. Buffalo Grove took the initiative to start an inspection process from scratch.

3 hours of horror leads to arrest of boyfriend

James W. Kawell, 28, of Spring Grove, was arrested and charged with two counts of attempted murder, six counts of aggravated domestic battery and two counts of attempted heinous battery for the alleged three-hour beating of his 30-year-old live-in girlfriend. The incident took place between 3-6 a.m. in their apartment and was reportedly stopped by a female neighbor who knocked on the door after hearing the attack.

Kawell

Kawell beat his girlfriend with a metal chair, a metal broomstick and repeatedly punched and kicked the victim, doused her in lighter fluid and was holding a lighter in his hand when ready to set her on fire, said a sheriff's spokesman.

Kawell is being held at the Lake County Correctional Facility with his bond set at $900,000.—Julie Murphy

Traffic solutions considered

By CAREL SCHMIDLKOEFER
Staff Reporter

Lake County officials and environmentalists met for a press conference Aug. 27 to discuss the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) Regional Transportation Plan for 2030.

CATS officials spent two years developing a plan that outlined future regional transportation needs in Lake County over the next 30 years.

As the designated transportation-planning agency for the region, CATS is seeking public input before approving the plan.

Shields, Libertyville, and Newport township officials worked with Suzi Schmidt, Lake County board chairman, and several members of the county board to get the word out about the proposed plan.

Of an estimated $61 billion in local, state and federal dollars over the next few decades, only $9 billion is estimated to be available to expand the highway system.

It is estimated that $47 billion alone will be needed for maintenance.

That leaves $11 billion worth of proposed major projects without funds.

Susan Zingle, executive director of the Lake County Conservation Alliance, said that What's in store for Lake County?

Train service upgrades

North Central: Milwaukee District North extension to Richmond and Wadsworth (1). Union Pacific NW: Extension to Johnsburg

Highway improvements

I-294/94 (Tri-State Tollway): Add lanes from Balmoral Road to Route 137 (2). Richmond-Waukegan: From Route 12 at Wisconsin border to Route 53 near Wilson/Fairfield Road (1). Central Lake County: Route 53 extension to I-94 and Route 120/Wilson Road (1)

Expanded descriptions of projects available at www.catsmpo.com.
(1) Project needs study (2) System category (quicker turnaround)

the plan continues to promote expensive new projects over making existing roadways more effective.

For example, the expansion of Route 53 through the county and an east-west connection following Route 120 were recommended to handle traffic congestion.

Critics said improving existing roads by widening them and improving signal coordination were more effective and cost productive.

Zingle added that the plan did not adequately address other issues, such as the Metra train system.

"Our Metra stations are already full, as are the trains themselves," she said.

While Metra was provided with funds from the plan, there were no details included as to how the monies would be spent.

It is not expected that any projects would be dropped or added to the current plan and approval is expected in October.

Chain levels at a 10-year low

The problem now on the Chain O' Lakes and Fox River is one of not enough rainfall and dropping water levels, Fox Waterway Agency officials said. They claim the water levels are now at a 10-year low.

FWA and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources issued an advisory in this regard. It covers the Algonquin Dam north to the William G. Stratton dam, from the Stratton dam near McHenry north to the mouth of Pistakee Lake and all lakes in the Chain O' Lakes and the Fox River north of Grass Lake to the Wisconsin state line.—Steve Peterson

Loss of 'enthusiastic leader' is felt around the county

By JEFF ZACHARY,
Staff Reporter

Lake County is mourning the death of one of its most enthusiastic leaders.

Gail Svendsen, 52, of Grayslake died of cancer on Saturday August 30 at Advocate Lutheran Hospital in Park Ridge.

Svendsen was the president of the Lake County Convention and Visitors Bureau based in Gurnee.

Lake County Chamber of Commerce President Katie Spies said that Svendsen will be missed.

"Gail was an admired leader and had a bubbly contagious energy. She was an avid coalition builder and worked with many businesses and promoted Lake County internationally.

"She was a wonderful ambassador for Lake County and was a good friend. She will be missed greatly," said Spies.

Carolyn Dellutri, executive director of MainStreet Libertyville, Inc., said she lost a friend and a mentor in Svendsen. Dellutri, a restaurant manager in Fox Lake 10 years ago, had met Svendsen with the convention bureau and upon hearing that Svendsen was looking for a director of sales, applied for and got the job, in December of 1993.

Svendsen

"I just learned so much from Gail," said Dellutri. "She was a mentor and a friend. When my mother died six years ago from cancer, Gail was there for me and my family through the hard times.

"She was a dynamo and I really had a lot of respect for her and the way she worked so hard to promote lake County as a tourist destination."

Svendsen is survived by her husband, Larry, her children, Matthew, Kristen and Andrew.

Funeral services are scheduled for Sept. 4 at 11:30 a.m. at the McMurrough Chapel in Libertyville.

CLC trustee Berliant resigns

After serving nearly 22 years on the College of Lake County board of trustees, longtime board member Millicent Berliant of Deerfield has resigned.

Berliant was first elected to the CLC board in 1981 and has served continuously since then. During her tenure, Berliant provided leadership for the board by serving as chairperson from 1985-87 and 1992-93. She also served on several board committees and was active in the Illinois Community College Trustees Association as a representative and as the chairman and vice chairman of the ICCTA's nominating committee.

"Mrs. Berliant has been a valued member of our board who has dedicated more than two decades of her life to the cause of higher education both locally and statewide. We sincerely thank her for her commitment and service to CLC and the community, and we wish her all the best," said Rosa Reyes-Prosen, CLC board chair.

CLC will appoint a replacement within 60 days to serve out the remainder of Berliant's term, which continues until April 2005.

Budget approved

The board approved the college's operating budget for fiscal year 2004 following a public hearing. The budget projects expenditures of $60.24 million, a 6.66 percent increase in expenditures over last year's budget of $56.48 million.

"The new budget reflects increases in salaries and fringe benefits, equipment, campus maintenance and operation," said Jim Rock, vice-president of administrative affairs and the college's chief financial officer. "On the revenue side, the budget reflects increases in assessed valuations in Lake County, increased enrollments and a $2 per credit hour tuition and fee increase for FY 2004," Rock said.

Swan song

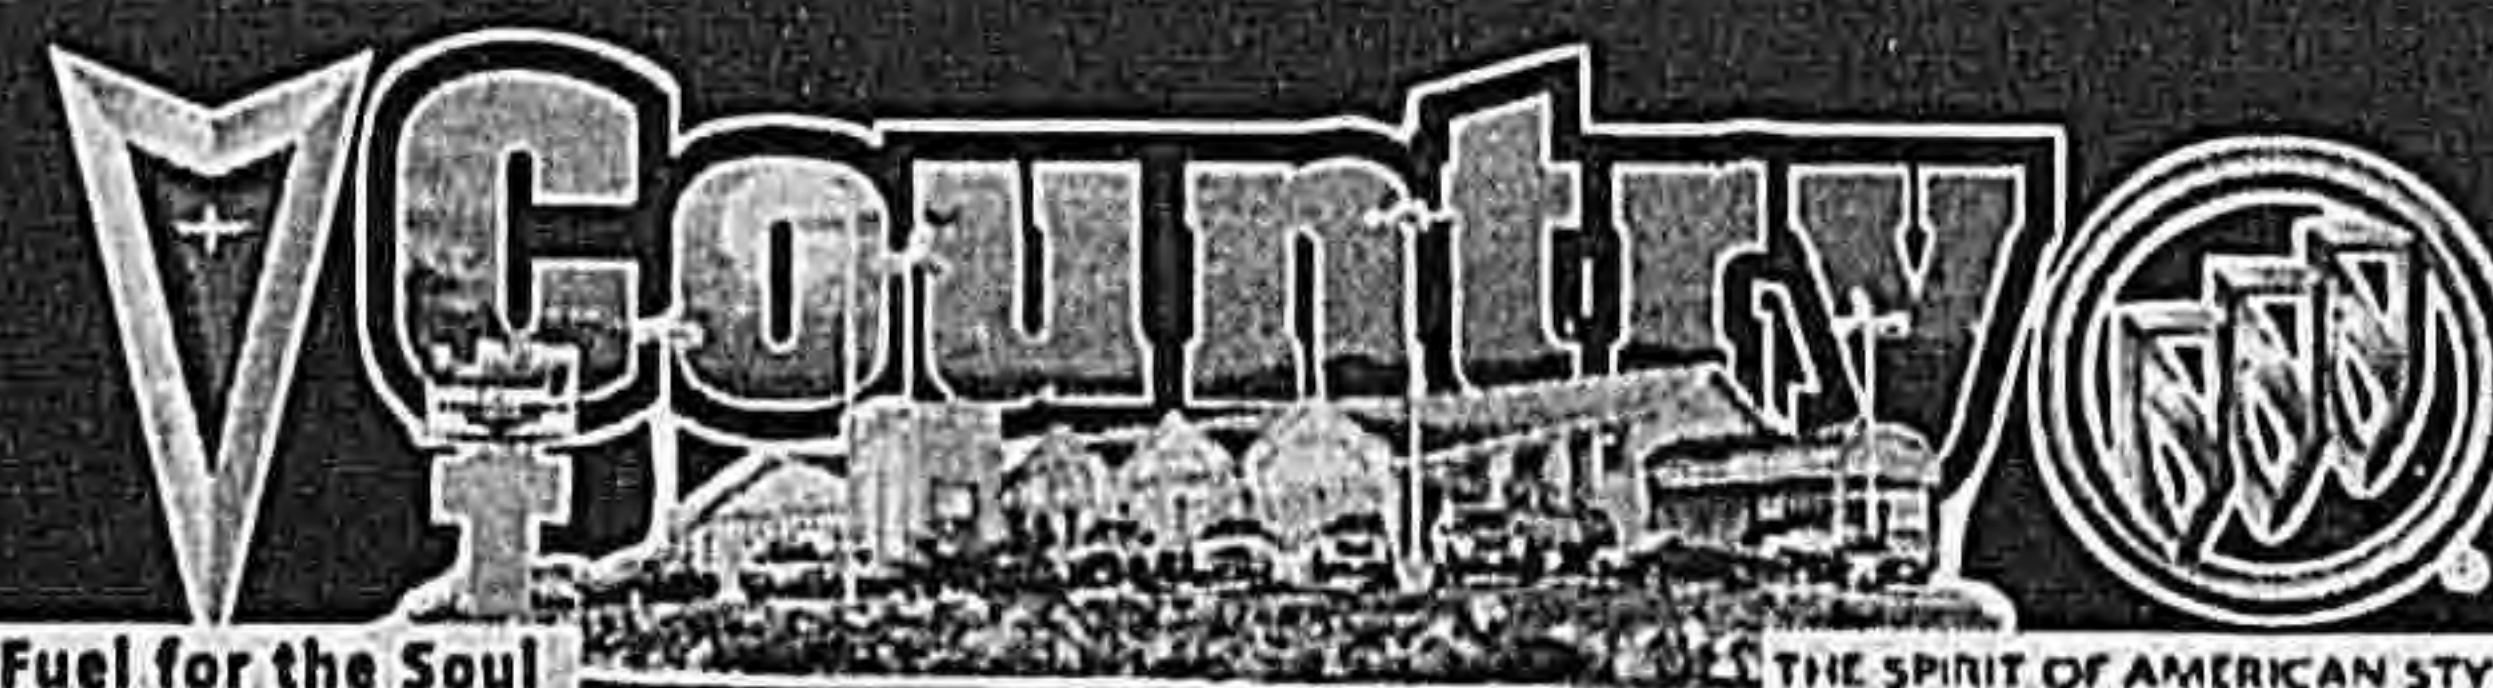

The services of Delores ("Dee") Swan were recognized at the meeting. Swan, director of nursing education, is retiring after 28 years at the school.

Agreement with village

CLC will allow the village of Grayslake to install and maintain underground water and sewer lines for the fire station under construction along Brae Loch Road.

Coleman tapped

In personnel matters, the board appointed Lucille Coleman, nursing instructor, as acting director of nursing education, and Brian Smith, philosophy instructor, as acting dean of communication arts, humanities and fine arts division through Dec. 23.

Smaller better —for high schools

New statistical evidence has been advanced that provides a partial answer to a question raised in growing communities, whether to have one large high school attendance center or operate smaller schools.

Columbia University's National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse found that students attending smaller schools or religious schools are less likely to abuse drugs and alcohol. The survey also found that students at schools with more than 1,200 pupils are twice as likely as those attending schools with fewer than 900 students to be at high risk for substance abuse.

The study, as reported by the Associated Press, included interviews with 1,987 young people aged 12 to 17 and 504 parents. One interesting finding was that young people said they are as concerned about social and academic pressures as they are about drugs.

Operational size is a question that comes up in the Lakeland area whenever building expansion is required. Two different schools of thought prevail. Stevenson High School is an example of the "bigger is better" theory. With more than 4,000 enrollment, one of the largest high schools in Illinois, Stevenson's record of excellence is compelling evidence in support of big high schools.

Libertyville, Antioch and Grayslake are examples of districts opting for smaller schools when population growth dictated a second high school campus. The Columbia finding supports the smaller school decision regarding control of substance abuse. Smaller attendance centers also allow for great levels of student participation in extra-curricular activities.

Warren High School, split into freshman-sophomore and junior-senior campuses, is an example of an intermediate position of taking both sides of the big vs. small argument.

One thing the Columbia study emphasized was that parental engagement in their children's life is beneficial. Interested moms and pops tend to overshadow size of enrollment questions.

Can't shortchange funding for agency

When funds are flowing the Fox Waterway Agency achieves continuing success in fulfilling its mission of working to control flooding, providing for safety involving heavy boat traffic on the Chain O'Lakes and Fox River, and working to improve water quality.

Organized 20 years ago on the premise that no taxes would be levied to support activities, the agency made headway during its formative years operating on user fees paid by recreational boaters, a proportionate share of motor fuel tax money and grants. In recent years, agency leaders have been successfully lobbying the state for special purpose funding, mostly dredging for areas prone to heavy silting. Sedimentation curbs boating activity and reduces flood water containment. Dredging has come to be a must.

Availability of state funding has changed with a new governor and state legislature working to operate with a tight budget. A funding alarm was sounded at a recent summit meeting in Fox Lake on finances. State funding of $2 million per year may be a thing of the past.

What hasn't changed is the demand for dredging, probably the agency's most successful project in recent years.

As agency Chairman Howard Scott correctly points out, the Fox Waterway is an Illinois jewel and legitimately can lay claim to continued state support, even in tight budgetary times. Demands of the boating public aside, consider how a large part of Illinois would be adversely affected if flooding were not controlled in the upper Fox and steps taken to maintain water quality since some downstream communities rely on the river for drinking water. To be sure, the State of Illinois has a big stake in what happens to the Fox River and the Chain O'Lakes area.

Elected officials don't have to apologize for working to obtain funding for the Fox Waterway Agency. The $2 million or so from the state is a pittance, but a significant sum nonetheless for agency commissioners just trying to do their job.

VIEWPOINT

Bourbon bottles still in demand

The world's number one selling bourbon, Jim Beam, is distilled in Kentucky, but its business affairs are managed in Deerfield. And for many years, the top selling bourbon was distributed in distinctive collector bottles manufactured in Antioch.

With a heritage dating from 1795 and sales of 5.1 million cases per year, Jim Beam long has been a legend in the world of spirits. A detailed account of the First Family of bourbon whiskey and how it got that way is the subject of a new book making its way to book stores.

"American Still Life: the Jim Beam Story and the Making of the World's #1 Bourbon" is written by F. Paul Pacult, editor of F. Paul Pacult's Spirit Journal, special projects editor for the New York Times, spirits tasting director of Wine Enthusiast Magazine and a nationally distributed columnist.

The Jim Beam bottle story began and ended in Antioch. After making distinctive collector bottles for nearly 40 years, Jim Beam executives made the decision to close Regal China of Antioch, a subsidiary of the distiller, in 1992. The closure was due not to lack of interest in Jim Beam bottles, but due to encroaching foreign competition in the manufacture of porcelain lamps, Regal's main product.

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Although long gone from the shelves of the nation's liquor stores, the Lake County produced bourbon containers are valued highly by collectors. Series of antique autos and trains were most sought after when introduced and remain to this day the most coveted Jim Beam containers.

In talking about the account of Jim Beam history, Pacult said Beam executives and the owners of Regal China were overwhelmed by the instant reaction of the buying public to the distinctive bottles.

"The novelty was an enormous success," remarked Pacult who said there's no question the collector bottles had a lot to do with vaulting Jim Beam to the top. "It's all on page 138," added the author, who now makes his home in upstate New York, but still considers himself a "Chicago guy" (Harlem and Foster). He's a graduate of Notre Dame High School in Niles.

What contributed to the mystique—and collector interest—was that Regal would destroy molds after producing a series like U.S. presidents or celebrities. The bourbon bottles manufactured in Antioch were so popular at one point that a manufacturer in Ohio started producing imitation collector bottles. "The fakes created a scandal among collectors and some lawsuits," Pacult added.

Thirty-three years ago, collectors organized the International Assn. of Jim Beam Bottle & Specialties Club, an organization with 3,000 members who hold annual conventions and keep alive interest in the bottles originated in Antioch. The 2003 convention in Grand Rapids, Mich., drew 260 persons, according to executive administrator Shirley Sumbles of Kewanee, IL.

Study impact of TIF laws on education

I have read with interest recent letters to the editor, notably from Fox Lake, expressing concerns that TIF (Tax Increment Financing) districts are negatively impacting school financing in their communities. Lakeland Newspapers editorials recently focused on how TIF's impact local taxing bodies. Also, I have written in this column how TIF's have gone far beyond the original intent of the enabling legislation. The original intent, a noble one, was that TIF's should be used as a tool to re-develop blighted areas.

When a municipality creates a Tax Increment Financing District, real estate taxes that would accrue to local taxing bodies are frozen within that district for up to 23 years, and the increased tax revenues are placed into a TIF Fund. The monies in that fund can be used only within the district for infrastructure improvements or to assist development projects. In simple language, it's great for developers and can be hurtful for local taxing bodies, particularly school districts. Also, it can be burdensome to local taxpayers outside

IT THROUGH

of the boundaries of the TIF district, who often must "pick up the slack" by the shortfall of tax revenues to fund education.

The first clue that the TIF law would be abused was shown when Highland Park became the first community in Illinois to avail itself of the law. If you can show me a blighted area in that beautiful city, I'll give you the Brooklyn Bridge for free. The theory behind the law was that taxing bodies wouldn't be getting increased revenues anyway, and that may have had some merit if the TIF's were really limited to the blighted, down-trodden areas. Then again, for school districts to wait up to 23 years, and even more if the time period is extended; well that is an eternity for school districts which are finding themselves in a funding bind. Also, some development projects can deteriorate in a hurry and I can see where some commercial projects, built through tax breaks, don't always, after 23 years or so, bring in the tax revenues that were anticipated.

In my mind, the experiment period for the effects of TIF districts has come to the point that it should be further examined. The legislature should initiate a serious, objective study to determine if TIF's are accomplishing the intended purpose of rebuilding blighted areas. Also, have the TIF districts unduly burdened local taxpayers shifting greater burdens to those who live outside of the TIF districts? What effect have TIF's had on financing shortfalls at school districts in Illinois?

A study of the impacts of TIF district law should include looking into which developers have benefited from the law and to whether those developers needed tax breaks in the first place. I am told that some special interests that have benefited from TIF funds are big-time commercial developers and those projects were approved

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Issue petitions beginning Sept. 16

Although they've been working on preparations for the 2004 general election since last April, County Clerk Willard Helander and her staff are shifting into high gear with the first day for circulating nominating petitions Tuesday, Sept. 16.

The clerk's office already has been handing out courtesy election packets to prospective candidates and their workers.

Helander reported that there are significant changes in election law as the result of action in the 2003 Illinois General Assembly. So many, in fact, that the State Board of Election retracted the 2004 Election Calendar for updates. Based on statutes, the Lake County Clerk's office has prepared a workable calendar for the benefit of local candidates.

"Oh, we'll be plenty busy," reported Helander, who personally will be handling election administration with the help of Chief Deputy Clerk Pagano. Another key election aide is Becky Sitz, a specialist in training election judges.

A presidential year election always triggers more activity, according to Helander. "Voter registration is up and there always are more voters." The 2004 ballot also will include U.S. Senator, four county-wide offices, seven Lake County Board offices, U.S. Congress and several other offices.

Also to be implemented will be provisions of the federal Help America Vote Act, the clerk pointed out.

Looking for money

State Sen. Pam Althoff (R-McHenry) is following in the footsteps of a former McHenry County legislator to provide funding for preservation of the Chain O'Lakes. Former State Sen. Jack Schafer of McHenry County was considered the "Father" of what now is the Fox Waterway Agency when organized 20 years ago. Althoff, who once served as a director of the agency, pledged to obtain state funding for critically needed dredging programs.

Keep 'em guessing

Is he or isn't he? County Board Rep. Don Bauer (R-Round Lake Park) is enjoying the guessing game going on about his political future. Originally, Bauer was a self-consigned one termer concluding in 2004. Now he's saying yes and no—sometimes to the same person. Bauer represents District 6 stretching from Round Lake Park, including Third Lake and parts of Grayslake.

Knee action

Venita McConnell, former Lake County Republican activist and one-time president of the 8th Congressional District Republican Club, is testing out a new knee with staff work for a candidate for state representative in a western Illinois community. McConnell is a former Wauconda village clerk.

Black Tuesday

Maybe it was just some bad karma or early arriving fog that often comes down on Route 12 early mornings. Or maybe it was the sound of the Cubs fading from the pennant race, at least with a three-game losing streak.

Whatever the reason, meetings were not fun at multiple locations on a Tuesday night.

Fox Lake Trustee Greg Murrey wished to have more progress made on streetlights from Route 12 south of Grand Avenue to Watts Marina. They have been out since a lane was added in that area.

Second, Murrey received the wrath of Fox Lake Mayor Nancy Koske for having a committee meeting on parks run into village board meeting time.

Third, Koske defended her practice of meeting occasionally with department heads off site to discuss matters in an informal manner. No village funds are used, she declared. She said trustees had received phone calls about this practice.

Fourth, down the road in Wauconda, a resident felt that she was cut off from discussing an important issue.

Finally, a trustee chided a reporter for arriving late at the Wauconda meeting.

Ouch.

Blame it on the West Nile Virus, Party Lines suggests.

With the Cubs going from possibly first place to third, will the day be remembered as "Remember the Minute Maid," as opposed to "Remember the Alamo" in Houston?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SMC has teeth

Hooray for the Lake County Storm Water Management Commission. I had the impression that SMC was asleep at the switch and a toothless paper tiger.

Grassroots citizen's movements to put some sanity into development schemes are crushed under the heel of local government and powerful developers as is evidenced by the rape of the Route 173 corridor, being big-boxed and housing developed within an inch of its life.

I'm just a little giddy knowing that there's another 500 pound gorilla out there, but he's green colored and on our side. Watch closely SMC. Maybe some land won't have to suffer the onslaught of earthmovers and pavers?

Magazine filth

Disgust is the first word I can use to describe my outrage when I saw the Aug. 22 issue of the "Reader's Guide" in Cook Library.

The bold blazen headline, "Dial M for @#$%&*&@#$%" should have sent shockwaves through the library staff and the Reader's Guide should have been removed as soon as it arrived on Thursday morning.

The content of the headline article was the most pornographic, disgusting and vile writing I have seen in my 63 years.

It did not belong in the Cook Library.

Two downtown Libertyville businesses removed it from their stores as soon as it arrived, one of which was part of a 35 Chicagoland chain who removed it from all their stores. I had seen the publication at other locations in the Cook Library district in the past such as Barnes & Noble, and none were available at the weekend—it was gone.

These businesses had the common sense and decency to do what was right for the community and their customers.

On Saturday morning, I showed the publication to two Cook trustees who were as upset as I was for the paper being in the Cook Library. I removed the few remaining copies.

I now have learned that our head librarian put the publication out when it arrived at Cook This is a perfect example of the perverted attitude that permeates most librarians with the American Library Association policy of "Free to Read" that encourages no limits on anything that library users, including children and young adults, should be permitted to read or view.

The news interviews of the whole incident are very troubling when Cook Trustee Linda Lucke who is a librarian at the Butterfield Grade School in Libertyville and chair of Cook's Policy Committee was quoted as saying "by simply removing material, you are attempting to control other people's access to information."

Not only is a library trustee the steward of our library resources, I believe I have a responsibility to preserve and protect the moral character of our parents when their children are at the Cook Library.

Trust me, librarians such as head librarian Fred Byergo and Trustee Linda Lucke do not agree with me; they believe whatever is in print, in audio visual material or on the Internet should be available to everyone no matter what, including our children. I simply do not agree or support their permissive attitudes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

User fees applauded

I'm a member of the Citizens for Responsible Government. Occasionally our group is in disagreement with local school districts and other taxing bodies. However, when a taxing authority deserves credit or praise we will be the first to say so.

Approximately a month ago Gurnee Grade School District 56 made a decision for the benefit of all students and taxpayers. They implemented user fees instead of canceling extracurricular activities. I applaud and support their decision.

While at first glance user fees may seem unfair to some people, they are not. With user fees parents can decide if they can afford the fees and value the programs enough to continue funding them. With user fees the cost is temporary, when your child has completed school or no longer participates in them the user fee stops. User fees in most cases will be less expensive than the $300 per year average tax increase proposed with the referendum. User fees are temporary—tax increases are not.

Thank you School District 56 Administration and School Board, you have found a way to balance the needs of all your constituents and our children.

specifically to assist that developer rather than to upgrade a blighted area.

The real problem is that many schools are in trouble, as letter-writers have recently expressed. Property taxes are a drain on local taxpayers. Is TIF law further draining the tax base so necessary to fund local schools? Let's get to the bottom of it.

I would urge those letter-writers and taxpayers who are concerned that TIF laws in their communities may be shifting a greater tax liability onto them that they contact their legislators and urge a comprehensive and objective study be done on the impacts of the TIF law. Such a study must be urged also by anyone in Illinois who is really interested in education in Illinois.

If the original intent of the TIF law is not being followed, and property taxpayers generally, and qualification specifically, are suffering in the process, it is not too late to make some changes in the law.

Why not let them follow their dreams?

Hi Dr. Singer,

Our daughter is 10 and when you ask her what she wants to be when she grows up, she tells you a movie actress. We know how hard it is to actually get to this goal so we have been trying to discourage her from that choice and to pick a more stable choice that will produce more of a stable income for her like a Doctor or Lawyer. She gets very upset when we do this and I'm not sure it's the right thing to do. It's just what seems right. Do you have any thoughts on how to do this differently? B.T.

Hi B.T.,

You bet I do! While I can understand the basis for your concern, I think you have to look at things a little differently. 1st of all and most importantly, this is not the world it was 20 or 30 years ago. I know many young Doctors and Lawyers who are walking dogs for a living or driving taxi cabs. Not that there is anything wrong with those 2 professions, but for someone who spent most of their young life sacrificing for their education, it isn't the goal they worked for. I don't want to get too into talking politics in my column, but ever since a certain political party started going after medicine as being the bad guys in favor of a nationalized healthcare service, the field of medicine has become a mine field. The heartache that many Doctors I know are going through is appalling and has ruined some lives I know of. I wouldn't wish that on anyone. And, for those of you who think it's o.k. for Doctors to go through that pain because they are "rich" anyway, it's not about the money for most people in the field. It is about many other things. It is a nightmare so don't think that the title of Doctor is so special anymore. It isn't, especially when you take into account how many years one has to put their life on hold only to get to other side and have limited opportunities. I also know several lawyers who have told me that the field is so glutted right now that, like I said before, many have to go outside their chosen field anyway just to pay the minimum bills. This would not be anyone's dream.

PARENT'S PLACE

Now with that said, if being a Doctor or Lawyer is a child's dream than the obstacles should not matter and that will be what they go for. The key here is that it has to be the child's dream and not yours.

I think that the people who are happiest in what they do for a living are those who followed their dreams and made them a reality. If you spend everyday doing something that comes from your heart it isn't work anymore. If you spend everyday in pursuit of money without anything from your heart you will be unhappy and stressed. I think 80% of the population knows this stress because they went for something "secure."

Now, I am not necessarily telling you to tell your daughter to be an actress. I am simply saying that it would not hurt to help her explore the dream and to take steps in the right direction. For example, you could enroll her in drama class or see if there is a way for her to get into a commercial or some other form of advertising as a start to see what the industry is like. She is still very young and seeing the reality of the industry may bring her further toward that dream and secure her thoughts, or it might drive her away from it to something else. Either way, it is all good experiences and your relationship will blossom because she will see that you are paying attention to her needs and thoughts and dreams.

There is also what I call the "Plan B" which is this: "O.K. movie actress could be great if you take the right steps, but let's also think about what you might want to do as a plan B if the actress thing doesn't pan out." I have used this over and over again with kids and it brings out all kinds of great stuff. You see, if you take it from the other direction where you say, "being a movie actress is unrealistic. Do you know how many people actually make it? Not many so it isn't a good idea and you'll have to pick something else." When you say it like that, it immediately sets up a defensiveness on the part of the child because you have made her feel stupid and silly. It also sets up a need on the child's part to prove something to you and ruins your relationship. You are showing your child that her own impulses and thoughts are not valid and that is not o.k.

Besides, it does happen. John Hughes went to my High School. In fact, the movies "Sixteen Candles" and "Breakfast Club" are like home movies for us. We often wonder which teachers he was portraying in "Breakfast Club" because we knew them. My husband grew up right down the street from Michael Weiss better known as the "Pretender." Jane Anderson is also a name you might recognize from "Chicago Hope." Also from my High School. It was very weird how I realized that she was an actress. We were watching "Kindergarten, Cop" and there was a mom in the movie who had a child who was being abused. You got to see her all of 3 times in the movie, but I knew her face. I told my husband (who also went to my High School) that I knew her more than just in the movies so I went to the old yearbooks and sure enough there she was. She was Homecoming Queen etc. etc. Jamie Gertz is another very familiar name if you ever have seen the show "Still Standing" or another famous role of hers, watching a cow fly by in "Twister." She is another face I saw in "The Lost Boys" years ago and knew she was familiar. This was even stranger though. I saw the movie and swore I knew her more than just the movies. For months I was going nuts with that feeling that I knew her but couldn't place from where. Moths later, I went to a social at my cousins old grade school in Glenview and was walking up and down the halls with my sister looking at all the pictures of the classes of years past and low and behold I found myself looking right at Jamie Gertz and said out loud, "I knew it!" I then asked some friends from years ago if they knew her name and sure enough, she knew all the people I knew. I never knew her directly, but I knew lots of people who she was with so I had seen her and that's why she was so familiar.

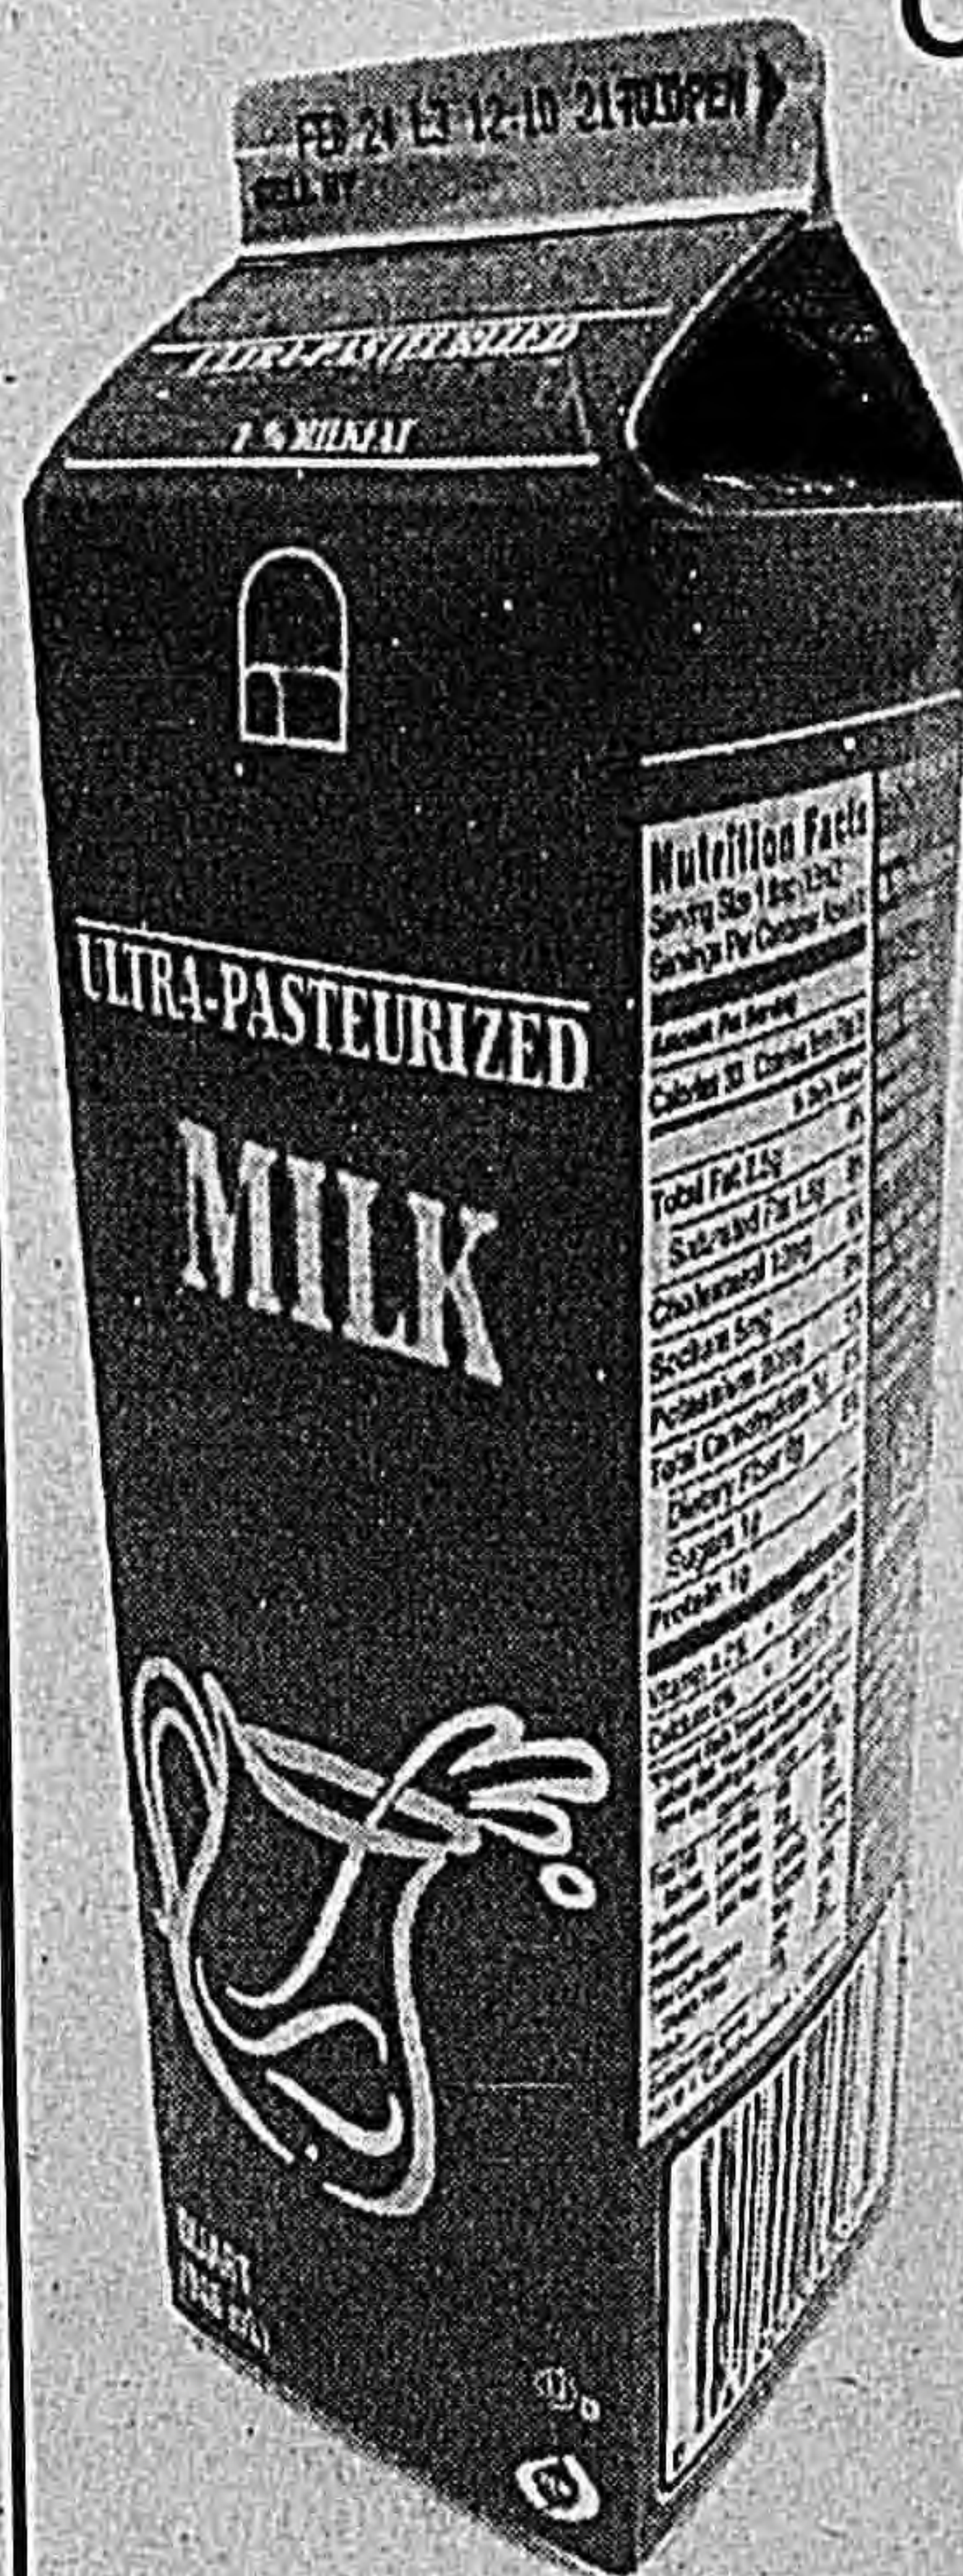

So I've said my piece. It can happen but only with the right encouragement. I think if you were to ask any of the people I just mentioned if they thought they made the right decision by following their dream, I think we both know what they would say.

They are going to make decisions in their lives that you cannot control or change. Hopefully they are good decisions, but good bad or otherwise, a good parent helps to support their child to get to the happiest place they can be.

I can't tell you directly what you should decide to do, but I hope my writing has at least given you some things to think about so that you and your daughter can have happiness.

Walk a little straighter—daddy, you're leading me

Wow! The first time I heard the song, a couple of weeks ago, it rocked my world. New country recording artist, Billy Currington, tells us about a father who is never quite there for his son who so desperately needs him. He sings, "I remember most of the time he wasn't there. He'd pass me by to go pass out in his chair—He stumbled in the gym on graduation day. I couldn't help but feel ashamed. I wasn't surprised; he stumbled out before they called my name—Walk a little straighter, Daddy, you're leading me."

Does that hit home or what? I don't know about you, but this issue of chemical dependency has certainly touched my life.

It's probably one of the most difficult topics for me to write about. Not only is that because I am so personally affected by the situation, but this is something nobody really understands. There are no definite, etched in stone reasons why intelligent and often very successful people should find it so difficult to resist the urge to drink, and once they surrender to it, allow it to destroy their life.

ON CALL

The fact is I always knew there was something very different about my friend—his frequent behavior pattern I couldn't comprehend. The first time I met him was at his clinic, almost 18 years ago, where he treated me for tendonitis. It was 11 o'clock in the morning and I smelled liquor on his breath. What was that all about? This well known therapist—a champion who worked with Arnold Schwarzenegger—so highly recommended, and rightfully so because I was healed in one visit, had a drinking problem. Wasn't it obvious?

Yet, I was the one to remain in denial during the many years that followed when we became such good friends. After all, how could anything be wrong with someone so famous, so clever and so entertaining with a twinkle in his eye—someone who seemed to have everything the world could offer. I came to overlook the disappearing act when I knew he was going to the secret place for that sip of beer from cans strategically placed where no one could find them. Sometimes he would slur his words and there was the time at a dinner party held for another dear doctor friend when he tripped and fell. But there were the excuses and the anger lashed out at me or anyone else who suggested to him that he had a problem.

After all, what did I know about drinking? I come from a Jewish background. We eat and we get fat. When the restaurant server asks what we want to drink, our quick response is that we want to order our dinner now. Oh yes, the instructions are to bring an iced tea or Diet Coke with the food.

Alcoholism is categorized as a progressive, potentially fatal disease. If this is so, and we perceive it as a disease like diabetes, heart disease and cancer, then why is there no treatment? How can we accept the fact that there is no cure for this "disease" and the only choice for recovery is through organizations like AA?

In my search for answers, I discovered Susan Powter's book, "Sober—and Staying That Way," what the famous physical fitness diva describes as the "missing link in the cure for alcoholism." She claims it has cured her and it can work for millions of other people.

Defense stands tall for Carmel

By ROB BACKUS

If Carmel should go on to win the Class 6A state title, as they are favored by many to do, the first quarter of its season opening game against Marist will definitely not be on the team's highlight reel.

On their first three possessions Carmel fumbled the ball twice, botched a punt and found themselves down 10-0 after the first quarter.

"Marist did a nice job attacking the gaps," Carmel coach Andy Bitto said. "They had a good defensive scheme and we didn't execute in the first quarter."

But Bitto stopped the bleeding right there. "I told the team, 'We dug ourselves a hole, let's dig ourselves out of it,'" Bitto said. "Two big drives to open up the second quarter got us back on track."

Those two big drives were capped off by touchdown runs from quarterback Mark

Venegoni (9-for-13, 120 yards, 2 carries, 25 yards, 2 TDs) of 12 and 13 yards, respectively.

The game was all but over at the end of the first half as Carmel held a 28-10 lead.

The Corsairs added another score in the second half and won the game 35-10.

The game, however, could have been a lot closer were it not for three goal line stands by Carmel's defense.

"I was happy about that," Bitto said. "Our defense and our special teams did a good job."

Also impressive was Carmel's ground game, which gained 211 yards on 31 carries, led by Jon Popovitch (15 carries, 114 yards).

But Bitto saw a lot of things his team needs to work on before its next game against Benet.

"It's good that the turnovers happened in our first game," Bitto said. "We're going to work on meshing on our option and on our short passing game."

Carmel's next game will be its home opener on Sept. 5 against Benet Academy. Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m.

Carmel tennis looking to defend ESCC title

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

After winning the East Suburban Conference championship last year, Carmel High's girls tennis team is ready to defend its title.

Key returning players for the Corsairs are: sophomore Kristina Minor at No. 1 singles; junior No. 2 singles player Catherine Grachek (who was in the round of 16 state doubles tourney with graduated Katie Donovan last year) and senior Jessie Wind who teams with junior Liz Brennan for a talented doubles team.

"We graduated six seniors and gained 11 sophomores, current juniors. They are all very good and about the same level so anyone of them can step in and take over on any given day," said coach Nancy Fehn.

Twins Jackie and Cheryl Blok are the third doubles team.

"They are excellent doubles players who have the stamina to go three rounds and come out ahead. This was a recurring theme the last two years at freshman-sophomore," Fehn said.

Juniors Christen Kunkler and Ashley Gier combine for the No. 2 doubles team.

Marisa Fiore and Katelyn DiChristofano join efforts at No. 3 doubles.

"Our goals are to finish well in conference, get through a tough sectional and into the state tournament," Fehn said.

Carmel downed Antioch 8-2 in a non-conference battle to open the season.

Against Antioch, Minor posted a 6-0, 6-1 win over Ashley Jensen; Grachek won 6-1, 6-0 at No. 2 singles over Kelly Poplawski; Wind and Brennan beat Lindsay Clutter and Natalie Stewart 6-1, 6-3; Kunkler and Gier downed Kara Hegggen and Samantha Edwards 6-1, 6-2 and the Bloks won. 6-1, 6-2 over Katy Faires and Amanda Peters.

Antioch won No. 4 doubles, as Christina Pontiles and Jessica Watt beat Fiore and DiChristofano, and No. 5 doubles. Carmel took No. 6 doubles, as Leah Johnson and Lauren Ring won 6-2, 6-1.

Carmel also looks to continue its success in invites this fall, as the Corsairs won at Fremd, Hersey, Waukegan and Fenwick last year.

The Corsairs host St. Viator on Sept. 11 in a key match and Marian Catholic on Sept. 15.

Simmons commits to Minnesota

By ROB BACKUS
Sports Editor

After a season in which he had 43 catches for 667 yards and seven TDs, Carmel's Jack Simmons came to the attention of a lot of colleges.

Even if you ignored his stats, it would be hard to miss him, as he stands 6-6 and weighs in at 220 pounds.

"Jack will be 250 (pounds) before you know it," Carmel coach Andy Bitto said. "If he keeps filling out, he can be a pro."

With the NFL still at least four years away, Simmons has at least decided on a college, the University of Minnesota, where his dad Terry played from 1977-80.

Simmons had been heavily recruited by Northwestern and Michigan State, but the family connection at Minnesota made it too hard to pass up.

"The good family connection helped," Simmons said. "But I would have wanted to go there even if I didn't play football. I like the big campus and I don't mind snow."

There is also a family connection in the Big Ten as his cousin J.J. is redshirting his freshman year at Illinois.

Also a big factor in the decision was the chance to play in his first two years, as Minnesota's top tight end, Ben Utecht, will graduate next spring.

"The coaching staff told me that they could definitely see me playing as a freshman," Simmons said. "And of course that's a goal, but a year of red-shirting could help me a lot in adjusting to the speed of college football. But playing as a freshman would be awesome. It's a win-win situation either way."

Besides playing time, Simmons would like to help lead Minnesota back to the Rose Bowl and a Big Ten championship, their first since 1962.

"I think that with the people they have in for this year and next, the team is definitely headed in the right direction," Simmons said.

Beyond that, Simmons would definitely like to make the transition from Saturday to Sunday.

"It all depends on how yard you work," Simmons said. "Guys who play in the NFL aren't always the most talented but they work the hardest."

But for now, Simmons' attention is focused solely on his current team, Carmel.

"Our number one goal right now is to beat Benet on Friday," Simmons said. "It's a bunch of stepping stones. We won conference and the Prep Bowl last year, so this year we'd like to win state."

FANTASY FOOTBALL MONTHLY 2003
(Touchdowns Only!!!)

Fantasy Football season is here again! For many Lakeland readers, the very thought sends their hearts racing. But for others, the question may be, "What is fantasy Football?"

One of the most popular games across the country, fantasy Football comes in many different forms, with each allowing football fans to draft their "own" team every Sunday afternoon and/or Monday/Thursday night.

Lakeland Newspapers began their league 3 years ago. This year the following rules apply: readers must pick one quarterback, two running backs and two wide receivers and a tightend. Lakeland Newspapers Fantasy Football Monthly counts only touchdowns.

Your team is good for one month and one month only. Entries must be post marked by the last day of the previous month in order to enter the next month's contest. For example, September 30 is the last day to enter the October contest. You must re-enter each month. After the last game of the month is played the total amount of touchdowns scored by your six players is counted and whichever reader has the most total touchdowns wins. In the event of a tie, Lakeland will count the touchdowns of the candidate's "write-in" players. One entry per person. Winner will be mailed a check for $100.

Lakeland Newspapers will publish a fantasy Football column each week tips and player news. Don't forget that schedule plays a big role in which players choose. Just because someone may be the league's best player, does not necessarily mean that they will be the best player that month. And don't forget the bye weeks.

Good luck and get those entries in.

Jose Hernandez ices No. 12

Round Lake boxer 15-2 after 3rd round KO in Rosemont

By DENYS BUCKSTEN
Staff Reporter

For Round Lake professional boxer Jose Hernandez, the hits just keep on coming.

The 26-year-old featherweight used his signature sledgehammer right to send southpaw Robert Hayes of St. Louis to the canvas at 1:55 in the third round of a scheduled six, last weekend at the Donald E. Stevens Convention Center in Rosemont.

Larry Christian, Hernandez' manager and long-time adviser, promoted the pro-am card at Rosemont. A crowd of nearly 1,000, including a strong contingent of Hernandez fans, was on hand.

Hernandez is now 15-2 with 12 knockouts. "Other than the two losses, there are only three people who have gone the distance with Jose," said Christian, a Waukegan businessman. "And one of his two losses came when he fought (and finished) with a broken hand."

Hernandez, an imposing 5-foot-8 in a division where 5-foot-6 is normal, had not fought in nearly a year and needed the ring exposure. Hernandez was aggressive, but a bit tentative in the first and second rounds, taking his time sizing up the busy Hayes and the adjusting his ring movements for only the third lefty he has fought as a pro.

Also making him slightly tentative, Hernandez had aggravated his right fist 10 days earlier, sparring at the Windy City Boxing Club in Chicago. Although he's had surgery twice on the right hand, the Hernandez camp feels the hand is sound, even if the psychological barriers were there in the early going against Hayes.

But by the end of the second round, Hernandez was doing what his fans have come to expect. He was stalking Hayes and starting to measure the 5-foot-5, muscular fighter for an early exit.

Hernandez nailed Hayes with a straight right above the left eye, at 1:55 in round three. Hayes, who went down and stayed down, said later the punch wasn't that hard, but it caught him just right, to turn out the lights.

"Jose got hit too much and we weren't happy with that," said Christian. "Also, Hayes was a last-second fill-in and Jose hadn't trained for a southpaw fighter."

Hayes said just prior to the knockout he had been weakened by Hernandez' second low blow of the fight. The first time referee Pete Podgorski warned Hernandez of a low blow, the punch was not intentional, Hayes thought.

But the second low blow was intentional, said Hayes, "and I can tell you, my cousins were talking to me."

Hernandez said the low blows were definitely not intentional, and occurred from throwing uppercuts against a much shorter (three inches) opponent.

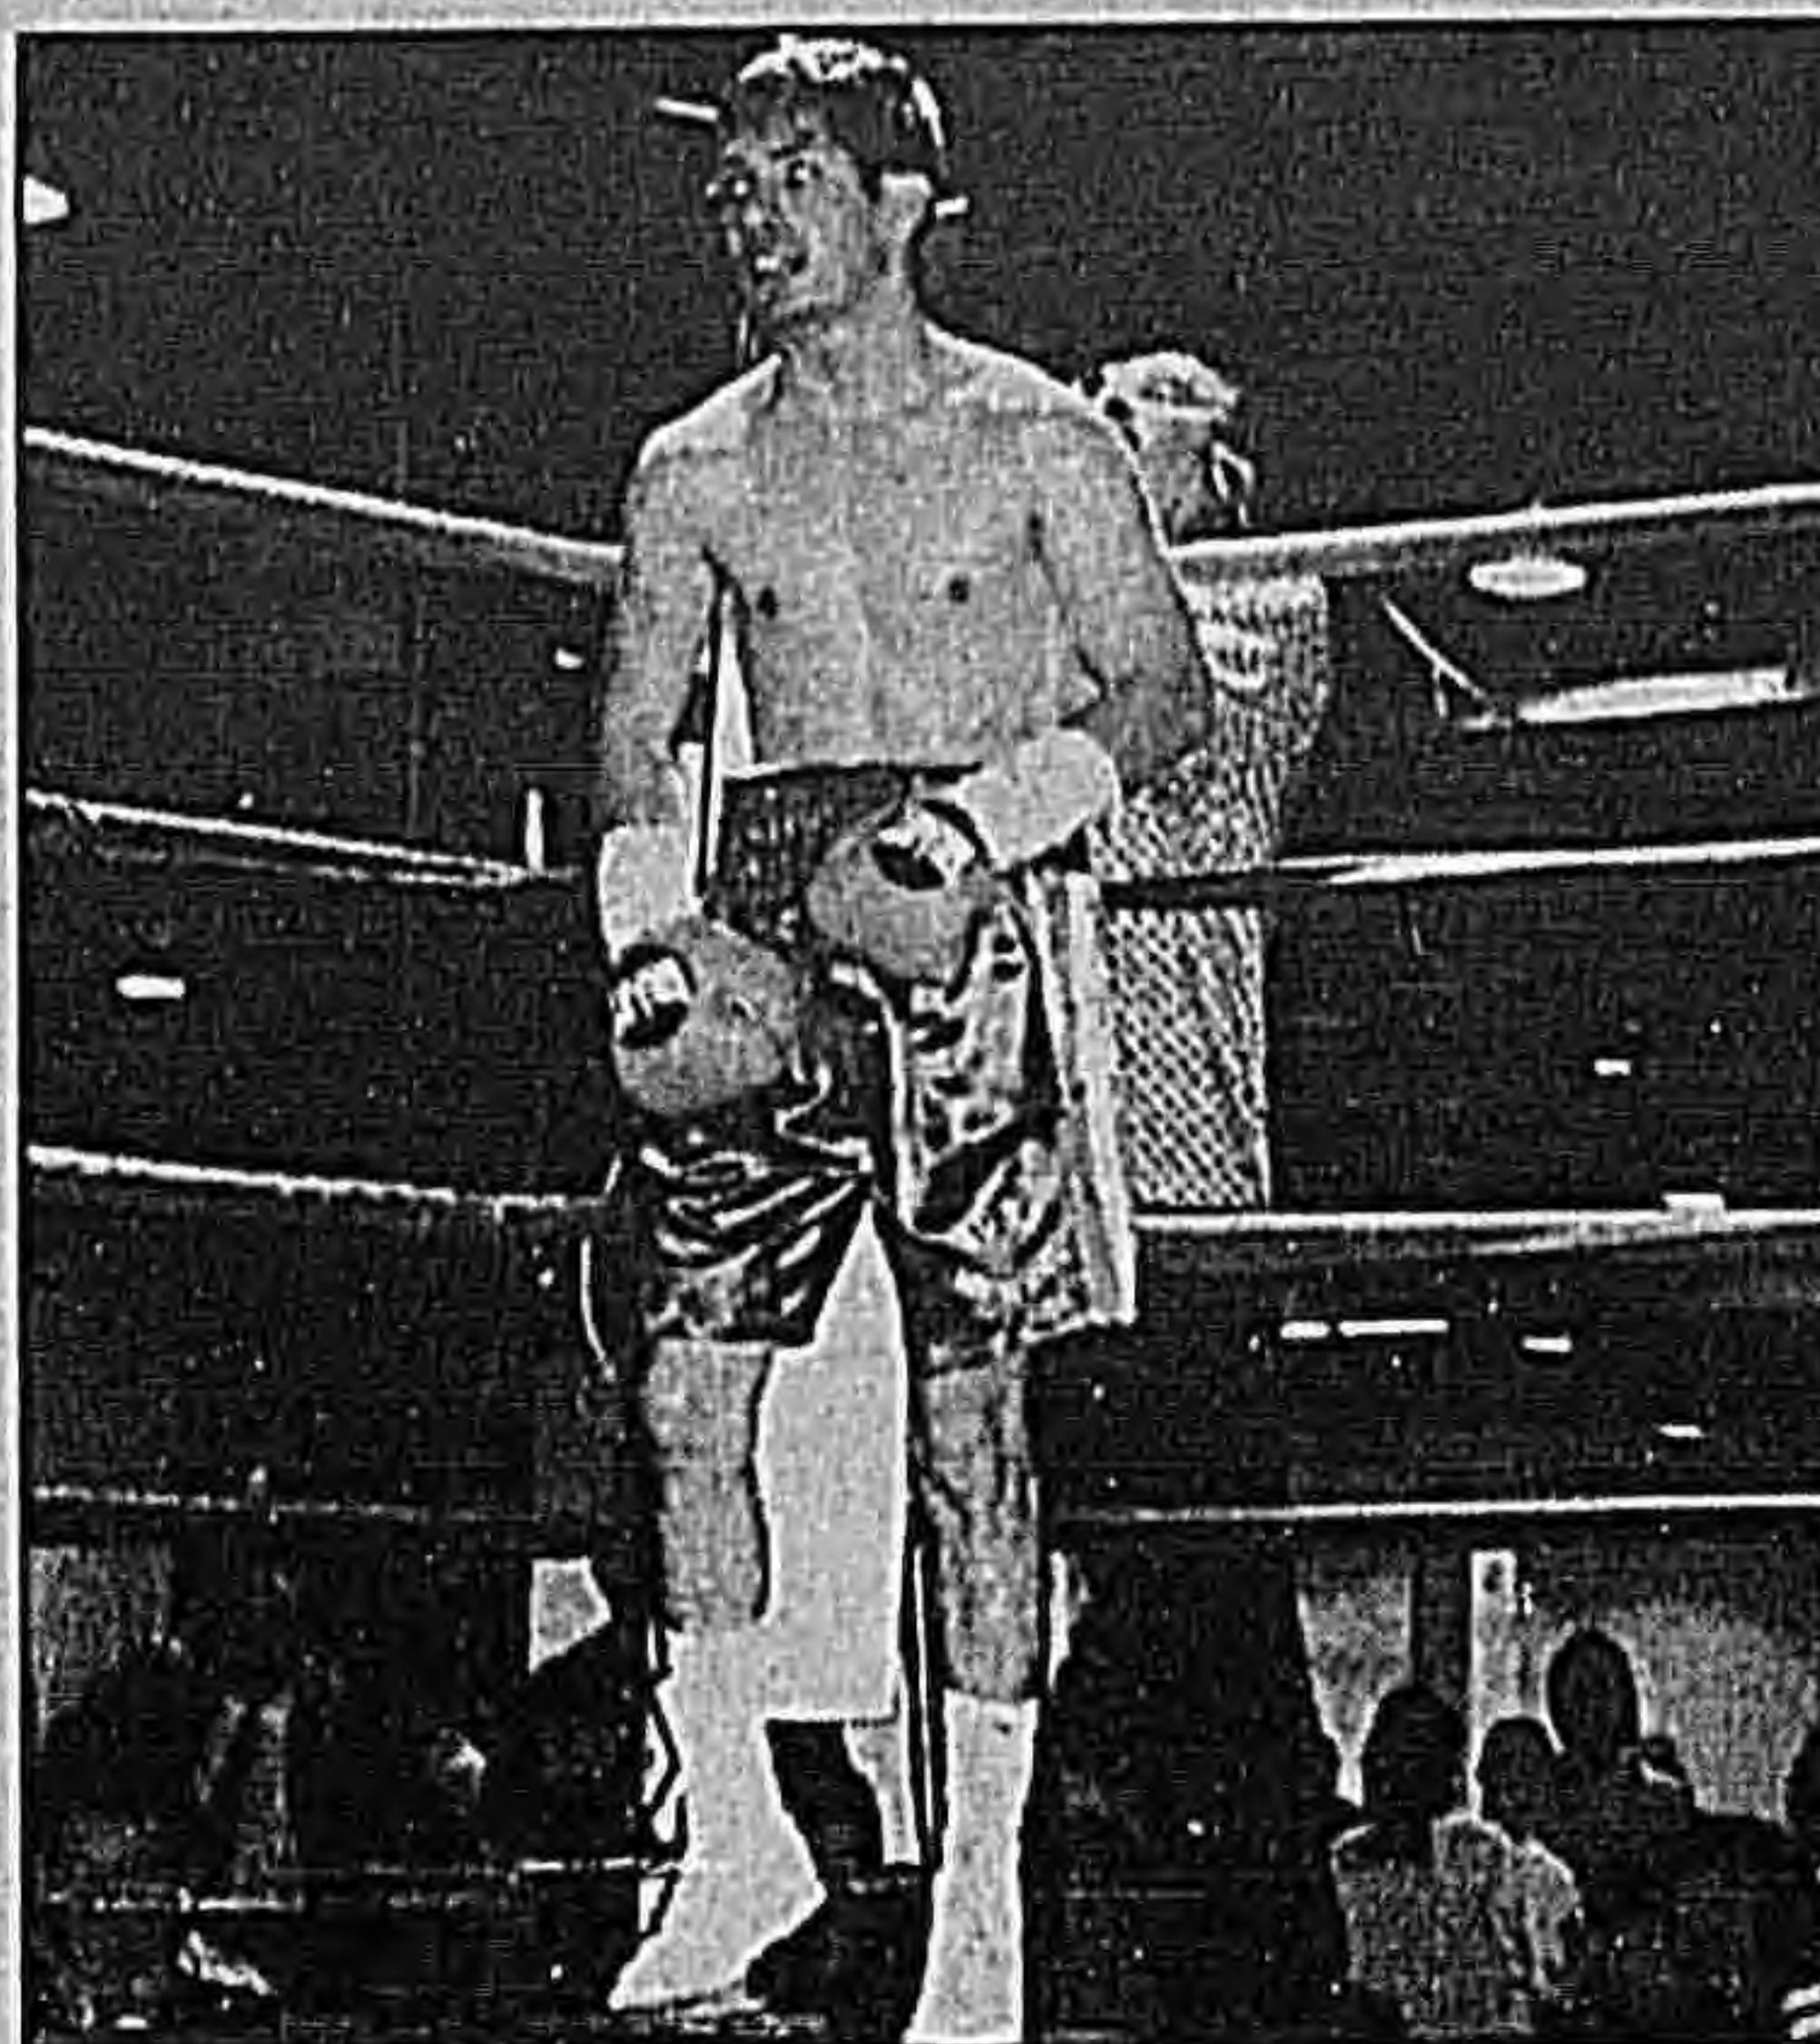

"I would never throw a low blow," said Hernandez. "I am the cleanest fighter you ever saw. But he is short and when I came up with the uppercuts, I did hit him low."

Ironically, Hayes, as a pro, fought one Louis Perez to a draw recently. And, it was Perez who handed Hernandez two losses during his spectacular 30-3 amateur career, which culminated in a National Golden Gloves title in 1997.

Rosemont was likely the last six-rounder for Hernandez, a high-energy fighter and relentless trainer, who spars with some of the top professionals in the country at the historic Windy City gym.

Larry Christian said he "wants another one like this one (Hayes), because he was a good kid. We want an eight rounder, but sometimes you take what you can get."

Plans are that Hernandez will possibly fight in late September or October. "And from there we'll go right to the big boys," said Christian, looking to a major step up in competition.

Job Search Faith Is Often Misplaced

By Scott T. Fleischmann, provided by Integrity Business Solutions

Candidates who are seeking job search advice often have misplaced faith in their ability to find a job. For example, some feel that their skills are so outstanding that it will be no problem to get a job. Others feel that their lack of skills will prevent them from getting a job. Often neither understands the reality nor the reasons for that reality. Skills are certainly important in any job search. But there are other aspects that need to be analyzed before one has full understanding of the probabilities of successful job search results. Some can be controlled by the candidate, but others are beyond his or her command. Good companies are looking for well-rounded employees. A recent study showed that those with liberal arts undergraduate degrees and specialized graduated degrees received higher starting salaries than those who had two specialized degrees. This principle is also true for skilled and unskilled workers. Employers want employees who understand various aspects of life.

Those who are looking to improve in that area can pick up books at the library on unfamiliar subjects. Most community colleges also have course catalogues that provide information on diverse topics.

Employers are also looking for candidates who have good interpersonal skills. I recently helped a friend with a job search. She got a job for a position for which she was uniquely unqualified. It turns out that I knew several of the other candidates (who were more qualified.) She got the job primarily because of her great interpersonal skills.

Why are these skills so important? Managers do not like to handle problems. Those who do not relate well to peers, supervisors, vendors and customers cause problems. Unfortunately, these skills are more difficult to gain. However, the more relationships we have the better we get at inter-relating. Therefore, those who want to improve in this area can join organizations that provide opportunities to build relationships. Church groups, civic organizations and charity work are great opportunities to build these skills.

Good communications skills are also highly desirable in the better organizations. Again, this talent is important to problem avoidance. Those who understand the requests, directions and counsel of others are less likely to stumble. Likewise, those who can communicate clearly and precisely will have fewer disputes.

Again, local colleges and universities have a plethora of communications courses. The least understood of these skills is listening. Most schools offer an entry-level course in listening. In addition, there are many good books written on the subject. These documents can be found at the local library.

These are the primary areas that candidates can control in a job search. But, as stated earlier, there are others that outside the job seekers jurisdiction. In the next column, we will explore those topics.

EVERYDAY HEROES

Since Sept. 11, 2001, we have identified and embraced those whose lead extraordinary lives, or in some cases, heroic.

Two years later, since the terrorist attacks devastated our country, we have opened our hearts to the stories of special people who touch lives on an everyday basis.

This year, we salute a special group of local heroes, who—terrorist attacks or not—perform special tasks or help others in a way that is unique to them.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

*Officer Anthony Kropp lives a typical cop's life:
part involuntary hero, part voluntary role model*

Most acts of heroism are accidental. It is a case of being in the wrong place at the wrong time and doing the right thing.

For Lindenhurst Police Officer Anthony Kropp, the wrong place was the Eagle Market on Grand Avenue in Lindenhurst. The wrong time was around 5 p.m. on a June afternoon in 2001. The right thing was "just doing the job."

As the wife of any police officer can attest, even in a sleepy suburban bedroom community, there is subtext every time a police officer goes out on a call or covers his patrol beat.

By BRENDA BALIN-BEITSCHER
Staff Reporter

That subtext is the expectation of the unexpected: the traffic stop that turns into a major drug bust, the domestic argument that turns into a homicide.

Or, on that June afternoon, the warrant arrest that turned into an all-day standoff between an armed man and police.

Although most calls reporting gunshots usually turn out to be nothing more sinister than firecrackers or a car back-firing, this situation felt different from the start.

"We could tell this was real," Kropp said. "The dispatcher sounded tense."

Kropp and his partner, Eric Senica, arrived on the scene.

"We could see employees on the east side of the building," he said. "I grabbed a shotgun from the squad car."

By that time, the 911 dispatcher had reported that Eric Hansen, the man inside the store, was holding store employees hostage and that he had shot two state troopers who were trying to arrest him on weapons charges.

"I saw people coming out of the store, and then Hansen fired at me," Kropp said. "I was right next to the car, holding the shotgun, ready to go prone across the car to shoot over the hood."

Three shots were fired. Kropp felt "something hot" near his face. He dropped down and moved back for cover.

"I never actually saw him," he said.

About 14 hours later, Hansen was shot to death when police confronted him in a meat locker in the back of the store, as he emerged shooting.

The "something hot" near Kropp's cheek was a bullet fragment that barely grazed him. It wasn't until much later that Cmdr. Mike Robinson of the Round Lake Park Police noticed Kropp's shotgun barrel had a hole in it. It was made by the bullet of the 9mm gun Hansen fired through the doorway.

Kropp's shotgun-barrel, held in the "ready" position in front of his face, had taken the bullet for him.

"I felt that everything I learned in school had kicked in," he said. "If I didn't have the training, if I wasn't prepared, with my weapon ready, I wouldn't have lived."

"Every day is an unknown," he said. "It taught me not to be complacent. You can be called out on a false alarm every day, but each time you go thinking it could be the worst case scenario."

"You always have to be a level above the situation."

As dramatic as this moment was, it is not the reason Kropp is a hero in Lindenhurst.

The 26-year-old officer was a recipient of the 2003 Lindenhurst-Lake Villa Chamber of Commerce Police Officer of the Year Award.

He was nominated by Lindenhurst Police Chief Jack McKeever not because he was literally on the front lines when a gunman terrorized a community, but because he has been on the front lines in caring for people in the community, most notably through the "Shop with a Cop" program.

Kropp first became involved with the program in Round Lake Park, where he works part time. The program began there in 1996 and was in full swing when Kropp came on board a year later.

Last year, he introduced the program to Lindenhurst. In spite of organizing the local effort on the spur of the moment, more than 25 children were able to enjoy the chance to go shopping at the Gurnee Wal-Mart, spend $100 each, and then share pizza and pop with the officers.

Besides the material pleasure, it gives children who can benefit from a little extra something during the holidays, it also offers an opportunity for them to interact with police in a non-threatening, supportive atmosphere.

"People see police as a negative icon," Kropp said. "This shows we have concern for these kids."

Kropp, whose regular duties include vehicle fleet and equipment management for the department, Gang Task Force, radar operations, tactical operations and evidence technician, said policing has changed in the last decade. It involves more knowledge of sociology and psychology as well as law enforcement.

Kropp regularly rides along with cadets and works with Police Explorers, a youth organization aimed at preparing young men and women for careers in law enforcement. Kropp is a former member.

"This job is what you make of it," he said. "Sometimes, it's just talking to kids in the park and handing out plastic badges."

Kropp is a second-generation police officer. His father, now 49-years old, has been a cop for 20 years.

Now engaged to be married, Kropp contemplated the dangers of police life.

"The object is to get home," he said. Nevertheless, he makes lots of stops along the way to help others.

"When Anthony Kropp was first hired in Lindenhurst (three-and-a-half years ago), in his professional evaluation it said, 'he has a strong influence on the welfare of other people,'" McKeever said.

"He has an excellent attitude that allows him to fill the role of a police officer, also recognizing other aspects," the chief said. "He is a true peace officer. He has a calming personality. He understands the power of policing, yet still maintains a kindhearted attitude."

In a recruitment flier, McKeever defined the elements of "heroism" demanded of police officers:

"You will protect us from predators and, occasionally, ourselves. You will be a street-level healer, social worker and applied psychologist."

"You will be forced to make complex legal, ethical and constitutional decisions within seconds. The threat of lawsuits, the smell of death and the sight of abuse will be a regular part of your working life."

"Without any doubt, you will be injured while on the job. You may die for us..."

"You will give up the profit margin, data shuffling and the bottom line in exchange for living in the center of human experience... and when you close your eyes, you will rest—knowing that your life has had meaning. Join us. Be a hero."

And Kropp did.

And a community is better for it.

"I felt that everything I learned in school had kicked in. If I didn't have the training, if I wasn't prepared, with my weapon ready, I wouldn't have lived."

Anthony Kropp

LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE

John Hernandez's mission is to open new doors to freedom for gang members.

you," Hernandez said to the several tough-looking Hispanic youth in the audience that night. "It's almost like a spiritual law. You have to respect people to get respect."

Hernandez added, "Intimidation does not work and violence does not work. You need to stop getting high, stop using drugs, stop drinking alcohol and stop fighting. All these things will lead to your destruction."

Hernandez then taught that too many people take the easy way in life by using drugs and drinking, but only a few take the hard way by living their life in truth.

"You must choose what is right," he added.

By JEFF ZACHARY
Staff Reporter

The meeting concluded with prayer requests from the former gangbangers. One member admitted that, after they prayed at the last Gang Outreach meeting, one of the criminal charges against him had been dropped.

"Would you consider that an answer to prayer?" asked Hernandez—to which the young man replied, "Yes, I would."

Hernandez, who was born in Ohio and grew up in Fort Wayne, Ind. in a family of eight, said he found God during his freshmen year in college at ITT Tech in Fort Wayne.

"After that my life changed dramatically," said Hernandez. "I found out I had a purpose in life and from that point on the Lord has been using me to help others."

It was in 1972, after Hernandez read the book "The Cross and the Switchblade" by David Wilkerson, that he developed a desire to help inner city youth and gang members to come to a belief in Jesus Christ.

He has worked with inner-city youth at the "Model Cities" program on Chicago's West Side at 16th and California and was the director of a Christian coffeehouse in Chicago called Hidden Manna.

Hernandez is also the police chaplain for the Mundelein Police Department and he has been working full time for United Airlines in the catering division for the last 28 years.

He said a number of people have supported the Lake County Gang Outreach program since it began in 1995.

The program started while Hernandez was assistant pastor to Jerry Dische at the Abundant Life Church, in John Hernandez, 51, of Gurnee, stands about 5-feet-6-inches tall and can't weigh more than 160 pounds.

But as he commands respect from former and current street gang members at a meeting of the Lake County Gang Outreach "Transitions" program in the Lilac Cottage in the Bowen Park neighborhood of Waukegan, Hernandez appears to have the strength of a man twice his size.

Hernandez is quick to admit that his strength comes from God. He adds that he receives respect because he gives respect.

Mundelein at the time.

A woman named Deborah Terlap approached Hernandez after a service and with tears in her eyes asked him to visit her brother in the hospital. He had been beaten up after a drug deal that had gone sour.

After meeting with the brother, Terlap told Hernandez that something had to be done about the gang problem in Lake County.

Terlap was instrumental in helping Hernandez make connections with some of the gangs in Lake County and the Gang Outreach was formed.

Gang Outreach put out some flyers about its program and Father Gary Graf, then pastor of St. Joseph/St. Bartholomew Church in Waukegan, received one. Shortly after, Father Graf called Gang Outreach and said he needed help with a gang member who had taken refuge in his church. The man's gang was trying to kill him. Hernandez, Terlap and a former gang member went to the church and comforted the young man.

"We could see the gang members outside the church waiting for him," said Hernandez. "We had already established safe houses in Chicago and so, in the middle of the night, Father Graf drove him there to hide out. I'm happy to say that the young man later became 'born again' and went to work at a safehouse in Milwaukee."

In response to the help he received, Father Graf then opened his doors to the Gang Outreach group.

"I am very grateful to him," said Hernandez, who also gave credit to a number of people for helping with his program.

Those people included the late Waukegan Police Chief Miguel Juarez, who was instrumental in getting the facilities at Lilac Cottage for gang outreach when he was deputy chief. Juarez died earlier this year.

"Miguel once told me that he would bend over backwards to help gang outreach," said Hernandez. He also gave credit to Mundelein Police Lt. Ed Kipp and now-retired Waukegan Police Officer Craig Wicke for helping out with the program.

Hernandez said that over the years Gang Outreach has helped hundreds of people to leave their gangs and to change their lives.

One of his bigger success stories is former Latin King gang member Ricky Bueno of Round Lake Beach, who had spent over five years in prison for various gang-related crimes. Bueno has now started a "Round who heads up a gang alternative car and bike club called "Solitos."

"Sergio's car club is great. It keeps people out of gangs and keeps them from fighting, drinking and using drugs. Sergio also has a gang graffiti removal program that he offers to the police departments," said Hernandez. He described how he met Arroyo.

"I was at the Mundelein Police department with Lt. Kipp one night when they got a call of a big gang fight about to go down.

Hernandez.

In its short, eight-year existence, Lake County Gang Outreach has helped hundreds of gang members leave their criminal lifestyles. It has become a faith-based, award winning, multi-racial, multi-cultural gang prevention and intervention service designed to positively influence the lives of at-risk youth developmentally, emotionally, socially and spiritually—due in large part to Hernandez and his ministry.

Gang Outreach includes weekly activities that reach gang members, wannabes, and at risk youth in schools, business areas, parks, jails and drug-infested neighborhoods.

The goal is to inspire youth to fulfill their potential in life with a sense of dignity, honor, respect and destiny. Gang outreach partners with parents, ex-gang members, mentors, community-based organizations police departments, probation officers and the courts.

Some of the programs it offers are Tattoo Removal, Gang Color Trade-in and anger management classes. Tattoo removal is provided by Ritacca Laser Treatment Center to those who complete the seven-step program.

People can move up a step by earning the privilege. They may attend three Gang Outreach programs in a row, bring others to the meetings, attend a Christian place of worship and Bible study, show a dramatic change in lifestyle, feed the homeless, do charity, visit the sick, get a job and show they have changed from the inside out.

Rules while attending meetings are clear: No profanity. No gang colors or symbols. No gang talk. No smoking in public view. Bring a Bible. Gang war stories may not be told unless they end with some sort of thanks that God changed their lives and the fact that they don't do that anymore.

Gang Outreach is supported by public donations. For more information on Gang Outreach call 847-249-0558.

"We could see the gang members outside the church waiting for him. We had already established safe houses in Chicago and so, in the middle of the night, Father Graf drove him there to hide out."

Lake County's Gang Outreach Transitions program*

Lake Area Gang Outreach" program at Indian Hill Church in Ingleside.

"I'm very proud of Ricky. When he got out of prison, and after attending a number of meetings, either he or I suggested he start a program in Round Lake. He kept attending our classes here for about a year before he made his decision to do it. I'm a hands-off leader and I told Ricky he had his own strengths and abilities and basically let him be. His program has really grown. We work with the courts, probation officers and judges and I tell them if they have someone from Round Lake to court order him to Ricky's program."

Bueno also has a lot of respect for Hernandez.

"I think what John started with Gang Outreach is awesome. He has dedicated his life to helping others. He is a good man of God who God has used for others to turn to for help whether they are in gangs or not."

Another local success story is that of Sergio Arroyo, also of Round Lake Beach,

So I rode with him when he made a traffic stop of some of the gang members from Round Lake that were going to fight with a gang from Mundelein. The police had them against the cars frisking them and I was passing out my information about gang outreach and gave a card to Sergio, who started coming to meetings and now I'm proud to say has had a big impact on others."

Arroyo acknowledges that Hernandez helped change his life around. "Uncle John (as he affectionately calls Hernandez) taught me a better way of life. He had a big influence on me and now I enjoy going to schools and teaching about how dangerous the gang life is."

Hernandez laughed as he said that just the knowledge of the Gang Outreach program has a deterrence on wannabe gang members. "The kids know if they get involved in gangs and they get caught they are going to get ordered here by the court and end up here reading the Bible," said

Imagine Lake County without forest preserves.

With its current 22,000-plus acres of protected wetlands, marshes, forests and recreation today, it seems like there's always been a forest preserve nearby.

But a county without any preserves was one that one remarkable woman faced when she moved from a Chicago-area farmhouse to Riverwoods in 1957.

One day, Ethel Untermyer's three-year-old son, Frank, asked to take a walk in the park, so she went to her new neighbor's home to ask where the nearest forest preserve was. To her astonishment, she was told there were no forest preserves in Lake County.

"I couldn't imagine there not being one—I was really alarmed but I guess that was the reality of suburban living," Untermyer said. "Where was my son to play? I needed a forest preserve and I wanted it now."

The next day Untermyer did what few others would do, she organized a countywide referendum to create a forest preserve district.

"I went over to the chairman of the county board and asked him for a forest preserve but I was told since it would mean a tax increase he wouldn't touch it with a 10-foot pole," Untermyer said.

When she arrived home Untermyer began to peck out a petition on her IBM typewriter. When the petition was completed, she knocked on her neighbor's door again to ask if she knew of any conservationists to help her in her quest to conserve land.

By SONJA SCHNEIDER

Staff Reporter

Instead, her new friend helped in finding referrals and getting the word out. They contacted The League of Women Voters, garden clubs and dedicated conservationists to invite them to their first meeting.

But only two people came to that meeting including a lawyer. Untermyer then took to the streets and spoke to community members, politicians, clubs, then sought out local leaders for acceptance of her idea.

After showing her face around town she held another meeting that attracted more prominent people. The U.S. Attorney General, the Director of the National Historical Museum and a few conservationists who represented a great deal of Lake County.

The petition was competed with all the signatures Untermyer needed to put the referendum on a ballot.

"I got all the signatures and then had to go in front of the judge and explain my story," she said. "The judge decided he didn't want the action on the April ballot because most people don't vote and it was controversial.

Untermyer's tireless efforts gave birth to Lake County's forest preserves

"I couldn't imagine there not being one—I was really alarmed but I guess that was the reality of suburban living. Where was my son to play? I needed a forest preserve and I wanted it now."

So we had to wait until the November election came around and I say, it was a huge challenge to keep the action alive through the summer until November."

Church members along with Boy and Girl Scouts, helped Untermyer in her crusade by handing out pamphlets and specifically targeting elected public officials.

Untermyer realized the one group she didn't have on her side, to her was most important, the Lake County Farm Bureau.

"I went there with all my materials on the forest preserve and when I got there everyone was looking at me," she said. "They all thought I was older than I was since I was young, much thinner and very cute and they thought I had another reason for being there than conservation. I was told I was going to be looked at as a tool of some politician."

Untermyer says she has never thought of being a woman during the time she fought for a forest preserve district but rather her confidence of what she believed in.

Untermyer approached the farm bureau and told them a story about her first years of life. She lived in a white farm house without heat or water in a forest preserve where she took the responsibility to watch the area and make sure visitors followed the rules.

"I had to make sure people were doing what they were supposed to be and not lighting fires," she said. "The next day I received a signed petition from everyone on the farm bureau."

On election day, in the fall of 1958, Untermyer was not worried because in her eyes she was confused why anyone wouldn't vote to preserve land. Bright and early, Untermyer had literature on the preserves sent to factories to encourage people to get out and vote.

Her action, now up against a new courthouse, was put on hold when the votes were tallied and recounted by the county board. When a friend called her with the good news Untermyer didn't believe it and went to bed.

The referendum passed with 60 percent of the vote. About three weeks later, the Lake County Forest Preserve District was legally established in the circuit courts. A citizens advisory committee was established and Untermyer became its chair.

"There was a sense of urgency when I saw the urban sprawl," she said. "There could have been nothing because once you pave it, you have done it. A free country is great."

The leader of the Cook County Forest Preserve District gave 10 formal recommendations of where to purchase land, many being along the Des Plaines River. But when the referendum passed, the county board chose not to purchase land until 1961 when the first Lake County Forest Preserve was created: Van Patten Woods near Wadsworth.

To this day Untermyer still takes action for what she believes in.

"I confronted Abbott Labs and asked them to donate some of their land to Lake County but they will not," she said. "I will continue to try."

One other action that took Untermyer by surprise was when the state put a cap on taxes and bond issues.

"I was heartbroken and couldn't believe it," she said. "Now the Forest Preserves are going to have to ask for money more often."

Untermyer is worried about the forest preserves, since she has been there from the beginning.

"If not a single person steps foot in a forest preserve, the forests would maintain themselves," Untermyer said. "It is very important for each generation to be brought up continuing interest in the forest preserves."

One of the sad things Untermyer says about being older is that all her supporters have died.

"I am honored to have met the people with whom I worked closely," she said.

In honor of all her lifelong efforts, a 475-acre preserve was named Ethel's Woods, on May 18, 2001. It's located south of Route 173 and east of Route 45, between Route 45 and Crawford Road.

Three scientists at Abbott Labs join to creat a revolutionary HIV drug

Three area scientists have made life a little better for those infected with the HIV virus.

Doctors Dale J. Kempf, Daniel W. Norbeck and Hing Leung Sham have created a breakthrough drug that keeps the HIV virus in check.

The chemists work at Abbott Laboratories in Lake Bluff and their new creation, Kaletra, is a second-generation HIV protease inhibitor, which was approved by the Federal Drug Administration in 2000.

Besides the remarkable way in which the medication works, Kaletra is the first HIV protease inhibitor to receive FDA approval for use in children as young as six months old, although it can be used successfully in adults as well.

It is for this reason the three were honored as Heroes of Chemistry on Sept. 7, by the American Chemical Society (ACS) at its 226th national meeting in New York City.

"Doctors Kempf, Norbeck and Sham, along with many talented scientists at Abbott have raised the bar in HIV therapy and have helped thousands of children worldwide," said Jeff M. Leiden, M.D., Ph.D., president and CEO of the pharmaceutical products group at Abbott.

By CAREL SCHMIDLKOFER
Staff Reporter

When taken as directed, the drug stops the progression of the HIV virus. But it is not a cure.

Kaletra is the No. 1 protease inhibitor in the world due to its potency and tolerability, and is the most prescribed protease inhibitor in the country.

The researchers are quick to point out that the success of Kaletra is due in large part to the many other researchers and teams at Abbott.

"The three of us are being honored, but really the work we're being honored for really represents the work of so many people," Kempf said.

There are so many pieces of the puzzle that have to fit together and that really requires many, many different teams of scientists and clinical people to regulatory people," he added. "And being part of a team that can do that is really exciting."

"This is very challenging work," Sham said. "But at the same time it is very rewarding because of the opportunity to work with people outside of chemistry trying to achieve the same goals.

"And we really have a commitment from the company," Sham added.

Oddly enough, Kaletra had its beginnings in Abbott's cardiovascular division, where Kempf and Sham worked together, in 1984.

The pair discovered that a protease inhibitor they were attempting to treat hypertension with had the same classifications as the HIV protease.

Once it was discovered that HIV had a similar protease, Abbott set up a antiviral research division in 1988 and Kempf and Sham, joined by Norbeck as group leader, set out to modify their compounds to block the HIV protease.

Challenges abounded. Two compounds failed due to deficiencies.

The compound had to be not only potent, but needed to be convenient enough for patients to use.

Their first success, Norvir—the “Nor” standing for Norbeck’s name and the “vir” representing virus—was approved by the FDA in 1996.

Kaletra succeeded Norvir in 1995 and quickly became a preferred treatment for HIV.

It was not only potent, but it was convenient for patients to take, making it more likely they would stick with the schedule.

Studies with humans have been ongoing for the last five years, and those who are still taking Kaletra are doing very well, Kempf said.

“Their virus has really been essentially undetectable for all that period of time and it shows no sign of coming back,” said Kempf. “It’s still there, but as long as they stay on this drug, they’re doing magnificently.”

Doctor Dale J. Kempf, Abbott Labs scientist

Even more satisfying to the chemists than being recognized by Abbott as well as the scientific community for their efforts with protease inhibitors, is the impact their work has had on people who live with the HIV virus.

As a rule, chemical researchers rarely have the opportunity to meet those who benefit from their efforts.

But the antiviral team at Abbott has been lucky enough to meet with some of the patients who benefit from Kaletra.

“I’ve had, in my career, the opportunity to actually work closely with some of the doctors during the trial and have had the opportunity to meet patients and hear stories on how people’s lives have really turned around,” Kempf said. “It gives me shivers. They’re very touching.”

Sham recalled how one HIV patient had visited the chemists at Abbott.

He had been successfully using Kaletra with other HIV drugs for several years.

“He has become an inspiration for people who are fighting this disease,” said Sham.

The success of Kaletra is enhanced by the enjoyment of their work, said the chemists.

“The driving force, I think, is every day we love the science part and the outcome is always a bonus,” said Sham. “We design the compound and people in other departments help us. Those are the exciting parts.”

Kempf added that his goals of doing interesting science and having an impact on people’s lives have been fulfilled with his career.

“I’ve always considered myself lucky that circumstances contrived together to allow that to happen,” he said.

There are always challenges in chemical research, and other viruses and medical issues to tackle.

Kempf is senior research fellow of the Antivirals Research Group. They continue to work with HIV virus therapy as well as trying to discover new drugs for other viruses such as Hepatitis C.

Sham is now director of the Metabolic Disease Research Group.

Norbeck is now corporate vice president of Abbott’s Global Pharmaceutical Research & Development division.

No doubt they will continue to be heroes in their new endeavors.

ALWAYS GIVING

To Rothacker, giving comes as easy as fetching a stick

Some heroes are easily identifiable. The ones who are more powerful than a locomotive, faster than a speeding bullet and wear really cool action figure uniforms are pretty easy to spot.

Other heroes kind of sneak up on you. It's not their power, speed or spandex outfits that catch your eye; you are drawn to the deeds that they do.

Paula Rothacker is no stranger to notoriety; as half of a husband/wife team, she and Alex Rothacker have put TOPS kennels in Grayslake on the map. TOPS, which stands for Tracking Obedience Protection Service, has gained nationwide recognition for its standards of excellence.

Alex, an imposing, 6-foot, 275-pound slab of muscle, has been on numerous television shows, running his trained dogs through their tricks and stunts to the delight of Leno, Letterman, Regis and other prime-time talk show hosts.

But maybe Paula has pulled off the most electrifying tricks of all over the last six or seven years.

She's spearheaded the training of a group of exceptional service dogs, including:

One who safeguards the life of an epileptic driver; one who keeps a high-energy, autistic boy in Highland Park from crossing the state line every time his mother's back is turned; and a dog that simply does a lot of cleanup, running to pick up items thrown violently around by a wheelchair bound child unable to control his motor functions.

What may be even more impressive is that Paula Rothacker didn't set out to perform these Gandhi-like deeds; situations presented themselves and she responded with ingenuity, compassion and charity in her heart. In the last half dozen years, she figures that she's provided service and/or protection animals for about 10 or 12 people.

One of those people, Marlene Smart of Highland Park had run out options two years ago with her autistic son, Louis, running her into the ground. The single mother of three, including Louis, now 9, Sara, 10, and Nathaniel, 12.

Smart, who is a business manager at a law firm, began searching for a solution to the problem of a child who could disappear in the blink of an eye, and two other children suffering from a lack of attention because mom was always running on full-alert.

"Of course, the kids wanted a dog back then," said Smart, "and I thought 'this is the last thing I need.'" Or maybe it wasn't. "One day I thought I wouldn't mind having a dog if it was useful. And if a dog could run after Louis, then it would be worth it."

Not long after Smart called Paula Rothacker and explained her problem. Rothacker considered the premise of training a dog just to keep a child from running off and told Smart she'd start looking for a good-natured dog, about a year old, and of a trainable breed.

Rothacker soon located Licorice, a female black labrador, about a year old, returned to another breeder after a family gave up on her.

But nobody at TOPS, including Paula and Jane Smerte, a Wildwood resident who works with autistic children, gave up on Licorice.

Smerte, said Smart, "spent many hours and gave her undying love to this task. She's just been wonderful."

By DENYS BUCKSTEN
Staff Reporter

The eager animal learned basic obedience and then was taught a specific set of jobs and commands—all designed to keep Louis Smart from wandering off and possibly into harm's way.

In training Licorice at TOPS, trainers used a special short leash attached to a small, child-like, wooden dummy, and the dog learned how to latch onto it, to act as sort of a canine air brake.

Licorice was also trained to get past obstacles, so that she could jump over, crawl under or do whatever was needed to get to Louis.

Marlene Smart met Licorice at TOPS for the first time (she offered a "bribe" from McDonald's) and immediately was taken with the 90-pound Labrador's easy disposition and stability.

About $10,000 had been invested in the procurement of Licorice and her intensive training. It was never an issue, said Smart as Paula Rothacker.

"I asked Paula how much it was going to cost," said Smart and she said right off the bat that it wasn't going to cost me a cent.

"When you hear things like that, it restores your faith in human beings," said Smart.

Now, Licorice doesn't have to tackle Louis if and when he starts to run off. "Now Licorice acts more like a companion and the initial need to fetch Louis is not so great," said Smart. "If Louis starts to take off, if he sees Licorice coming, he stops."

"And the little leash is no longer needed. Licorice sort of herds Louis back. And if he needs to grab on, she grabs on anywhere, his shirt. And then she sort of 'herds' Louis back."

Paula Rothacker crossed into a new area of service dog training when she was contacted by an area woman who suffers from epilepsy and lived in fear of having an automobile accident.

But TOPS found a dog for the woman who could tell when an epileptic seizure was coming on.

The result was a woman who had gained control of her life, the ability to drive and pull over when the dog alerted her. The dog could also save the woman embarrassment or inconvenience in other situations by alerting her, Rothacker said.

It's a relatively new area of (recognized) dog awareness, one that really can't be trained, but can be directed and reinforced, said Rothacker.

"To a dog, a human emits an odor for every emotion, like the fear of a bad guy running away. This is something the dog does all by itself. The dog picks it up all on its own. They're very in tune; they figure out that this certain odor precedes the distress and act on it."

"With a boy who cerebral palsy, the dog would jump on his wheelchair, anything that would alert the parents," she said.

For Paula Rothacker, the decision to give back to the community was not so much a conscious one, as one she fell into as people with different needs presented themselves.

"Most people who are disabled have so many other expenses to deal with. And there are long lists of people waiting on organizations that do service dog training. Lots of times these people wait for years."

"And this kind of training is something we can do easily. I guess we do it because we can."

ALL TRUE

Roger Manderscheid does not think of himself as heroic, but his altruism is unmistakable through the money that has been raised for community good at the Run for Freedom in its nine years.

The 5K fun run/walk, Manderscheid's brainchild, is held annually in conjunction with Antioch's Fourth of July celebration and events. About to embark on its 10th year, the proceeds have been used to purchase defibrillators, support SEDOL (Special Education District of Lake County) with the purchase of athletic equipment, build a running path in Antioch, supply the local library with athletic-related books, magazines and videos as well as update both cross country and track equipment for Antioch Community High School.

"We wanted to sponsor something that would fit in well with the activities of the village on the Fourth of July," said Manderscheid, executive vice president of the State Bank of The Lakes that sponsors the run. "We also wanted an activity that could truly be enjoyed by all members of the community, young and old, and that supports healthy family values in addition to raising money."

Manderscheid said he came up with the idea after participating in the Condell race in Libertyville about 10 years ago.

"I started running for health reasons and really liked it," he said. "I ran the race in Libertyville and thought having something like that would work in Antioch."

Initially, celebrities like Frank Shorter, a marathon medalist in the 1972 Olympics, were brought in to pique interest and enthusiasm for the race.

"When we started out, we had about 250 people who would participate," Manderscheid said. The race has grown dramatically every year. Now we start runners first and walkers a few minutes later so it doesn't get too congested."

The course itself meanders through some of the residential streets of Antioch and now draws about 1,200 runners and walkers. It is a certified USATF (U.S.A. Track and Field) sanctioned event as well as a registered CARRA (Chicago Area Runners Association) event, details important to competitive runners.

Said Manderscheid, "The course is challenging, but without being too difficult. We want to draw as many participants as possible and don't want to discourage anyone by making it too hard. The point is to go out and have fun."

He said that while it might be anticipated that the bulk of those choosing to participate would be between 15-30 years old, ages range from as young as 2- or 3-years-old and continue upwards of 80-years-old. So many families have opted to enter all members that a special registration category for families has been added.

"The beauty of this race is that it's for everyone and supports causes that are important to our community. Running and walking are great forms of exercise. We don't overdo it; we're here to have fun."

"Often the male and female runners in the top spot (for overall fastest times) are over (age) 30," Manderscheid said. "We do award prizes by age group, and the ones that are proudest of their accomplishments are those who are 60-years-old and older."

Manderscheid said there are no rules stating that those who start running have to finish running or vice versa. "There's an uphill push toward the end, and some that start out running decide to bring it to a walk there, while others who start out walking may decide that they can go a little faster," he said.

The time it takes to complete the 5K (3.1 miles) ranges from 16 minutes for the fastest runners to over an hour for the walkers.

For years, Manderscheid was not able to participate himself because of the work involved in putting on the event. More than 60 volunteers work the day of the race to ensure the plans made by a committee of about one dozen, nearly a year in the making, go off without a hitch.

"We have great support now and I've been able to run the last couple of years," he said. "I just can't say enough about the support the race receives, particularly from the police and fire departments, the rescue squad and the village (of Antioch) in general. They do a terrific job for us. Everyone is there to make sure that no one gets hurt and that everyone has a good time."

While the State Bank of The Lakes is the official sponsor, local businesses like Thelen, James Hamlin and Company, Jack's Four Squires, Churchill, Baumgartner and Quinn, The Deli Source, Carey-Gelden Electric and Antioch Gasket and Manufacturing Company have joined in with support.

Participants get an extra boost from the spectators who cheer them on in numbers growing in proportion to that of the runners and walkers. Manderscheid said, "It's wonderful to see all the people come out to watch the race. It adds to the adrenaline kick you get anyway just because of the race situation."

Manderscheid said plans for next year's event will begin about October, and that he looks forward to implementing new procedures and technologies that will make officiating the race easier.

"The beauty of this race is that it's for everyone and supports causes that are important to our community," said Manderscheid. "Running and walking are great forms of exercise. We don't overdo it; we're here to have fun."

"It was a great honor for him to be chosen to go to the ceremony. They can only have one or two people there," said Cindy Schmit.

The Schmit family of Fox Lake took in Anthony during his days at GCHS.

"We are so proud of D.T. He is a fine young man who played football at Grant High. He enjoyed coming back to the area, spent a week at Washington, D.C., and came back to Grant and saw Mr. Cittadino (Frank, athletic director)," said Schmit.

Anthony overcame being struck by a drunk driver that cut his promising football career short. And then, after graduating GCHS in 1999, joined the Army.

Schmit's own sons, Dustin and Taylor, are also in the military. Dustin Schmit will go back to Fort Benning for infantry training, and then on to Fort Campbell, Ky., for his duty station, home of the 101st Airborne. Taylor will go to Fort Jackson for basic training.

Schmit is active in the support group MilitaryMoms.net that celebrated its second anniversary in early August. Rockford TV came to document the event.

"We have moms whose children are starting to come home from Iraq now," Schmit said. "Wendy Pettit, the founder of MilitaryMoms.net's son Jeremy is still over there. Stephanie Perr's son Derrick is still over there and he has also done a tour in Afghanistan. These young men are all in the 101st Airborne. They are such a tribute to our country and what it stands for. They are brave young men who risk it all for us back home," Schmit said.

Schmit tells the facts behind how a child of someone that she knew tried to help save a soldier with the 4th Infantry Division that was in a group that went over a landmine

The soldier, despite the best efforts of medics, died.

"He is also a brave young hero. My heartfelt sympathies go to this young man's family. He gave all that he could give. I had the pleasure of meeting the medic and they don't come better than this young man," Schmit said.

*"We wait, we cry, we worry, we send letters,
We cry more, and we worry more,
But we pray, pray and pray more.
We are Military Moms."*

She also said many parents have had sons serve in Afghanistan, such as a couple from Washington State.

"We have them coming and going. It is like trading places, one being blessed with their child coming home and another with the heartbreak of their child being deployed again. We have friends whose sons are Rangers and we don't know where they are and they need to be unidentified but we know who they are and they are in our prayers.

Militarymoms.net has members in all 50 states. The group sends many care packages to soldiers who do not get regular mail.

"We pray that God keeps them safe from harm," Schmit said.

When hostilities first broke out in Iraq before the president declared the end of battle on May 1, area school children are showing support for U.S. troops ready to defend their freedom in an impending war in Iraq.

Militarymoms.net started just before Sept. 11, 2001's terrorist attacks. It just held a meeting that attracted moms from all over the Midwest at a Gurnee restaurant. "It is unbelievable how many have been sent to the Gulf. One was sent to Spain, another to Kuwait. We had moms from Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Minnesota. Militarymoms.net is in every state. We have friends who have served in Afghanistan. They say that it is pretty scary; like nothing they have experienced. A few of the moms have lost their kids, including one from New York that was in a helicopter crash."

Students' letters

Some samples of some of the letters sent by Gavin School students:

"Dear brave American soldiers, I would just like to thank you for protecting the USA. After what happened on Sept. 11, 2001, I felt that our country was really coming together. I also knew that our American soldiers had to be as brave as they could be and give it their best. I can just tell that you are doing that because of how the war is coming along. I am proud to be an American. I really appreciate your bravery and I just want to let you know I'm a sixth-grader living in Ingleside. I am safe. I am praying for you and the other soldiers," wrote one student.

"Thanks for fighting for our country. I am 11-years-old and I go to Gavin South School and you are one of the bravest people I've ever heard of. It takes a lot of courage to go into the Army, Navy, Air Force or the Marines," wrote another student.

"Hello, I am an 11-year-old girl who wants to give her thanks every night. Here is a poem I wrote, 'Brave and Smart, Wrong and Right you see, Always blessing thee, very brave, every sacrifice means brave.

"I have seen things on Sept. 11. But you see worse. You feel pain and you risk your life for me. You make me free. I can walk outside and be happy because no one is holding a gun at me. Work right down on it and its because of you. You make us free, you make us proud, and you make us brave. Make us proud," penned a third student, a girl.

"My name is Nicole and I go to school at Gavin South. I'm in the sixth-grade. I live in an area of Chicago in Illinois. My uncle was in the Navy or Army. He had a green uniform on and his shirt had badge with his last name on it. My friends and I thought about the vet and helping animals. Maybe I'll save an animal; I will at least be saving something in life. Animals have feelings, too. Well, good luck, and remember when you're fighting, you're not just fighting for the United States; you are fighting for your family and friends. I feel safer when someone is trying to make the United States a better place and doing their job. Do it for your family, friends, and all the kids in America and the grown ups."

The moms share stories about their children in the service.

"Thank-you so much for fighting for my country! You have no idea how much me and my school honors you. Soldiers are very important and I really honor that you are always there for our country. I am a sixth-grade girl at Gavin South Junior High School. I hope that this letter will cheer you up and help you understand how much I honor you for fighting and risking your life for our country. I hope you have a good life and God Bless You. God will reward you later," wrote another.

One student wrote patriotic phrases such as "We're all Americans" and the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States.

Petit, a military mom from New York, started the MilitaryMom.net organization. Schmit, who has lived in Fox Lake for several years, said there will be even more efforts in the near future.

A poem sums up the organization best.

"We wait, we cry, we worry, we send letters,

We cry more, and we worry more,

But we pray, pray and pray more.

We are. Military Moms."

Lescher climbs the ladder at area fire department

Ed Lescher, 27, is one of the youngest officers in leadership positions at a Lake County fire department. He works for the Fox Lake Fire Department, run from 1957-01 by Stu Hoehne, which is now in the hands of Stu's son, Ron Hoehne.

And now, Lescher has moved up through the ranks from cadet to assistant chief.

"I handle public education for 3,000 students. We do it all the time, but our big push is in October," Lescher said during one of his 24-hour shifts.

His work gets kudos from his fellow firefighters.

"He does a great job with that. We put out best foot forward with Ed. That is how the chief wishes to have us represented in the community," said Ted Beskow, also an assistant chief.

Beskow has known Lescher for more than the nine years that Lescher has been at the department.

"He (Lescher) is very dedicated. He is tireless and is a natural born leader. You could see it in him early," Beskow said. "It is good that he started right from high school. You can continue your learning, because you have 25 hours of continuing education a month, plus you learn every day."

If Lescher has one fault, colleagues say jokingly. Firemen are supposed to be good chefs, but that is one area the 27-year-old needs a bit of work in, they say.

"He has accomplished quite a lot with ESDA, Emergency Services Disaster Agency, going to a lot of schools. He is also shift commander, in charge of six full-timers and those who may come in on the shift," said Chief Ron Hoehne.

Last year, Lescher was appointed the village's ESDA position. Due to increased demands, two other officers have been added to the ESDA team.

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

"There are a ton of extra classes since 9/11, such as recognizing weapons of mass destruction in use now. It's a very vital role," Lescher said.

Lt. Betty Smith and Captain Cynthia Block now assist Lescher.

The department has about 80 percent medical calls. Training is done three nights a week. New equipment purchases of late include a new ambulance, fire truck and a fourth station, in Spring Grove. Surrounding fire departments have purchased an air boat, a trend in suburban departments with as much water as the Chain O' Lakes.

Lescher, a graduate of Grant High School in Fox Lake, also serves as shift commander. He said, with some exceptions, there has been no major structure fires in the past couple of years. One example was a home on Cora Avenue, on Mineola Bay, that had to be fought from the water when it caught fire a couple of years ago.

WITH HONORS

Bringing recognition to everyday heroes is an everyday job for this high school honors student

Editor's note: Stefanie Vollmer is a senior at Warren Township High School in Gurnee, who was instrumental in getting Everyday Heroes Week recognized on a statewide level.

This little idea—Our Everyday Heroes Week—all started in 2001 as a participatory citizen project in my Warren Township High School's Government class.

This idea of honoring Our Everyday Heroes Week around every Sept. 11, was first approved by city officials in Gurnee and then by state officials. On April 23, 2002, then-Gov. George Ryan signed a proclamation to have Sept. 8-14 as Our Everyday Heroes Week for the state of Illinois. Due to this proclamation, Illinois can now take the tragic events of 9/11 and turn it around into something positive.

Our Everyday Heroes Week honors the military, fire, rescue, emergency medical, police and public works departments. These people continually risk their lives on a daily basis. Basically, Our Everyday Heroes Week honors the ones we lost on 9/11, but also honors the living heroes as well. This week eases into Patriot Day—9/11—which honors those this country has lost due to the terrorist attacks.

Last year Lake County honored Our Everyday Heroes Week for the first time. It did the following three positive things:

- Lake County started a "public awareness program" by explaining the needs of Our Everyday Heroes so they may do their best before, during and after an event like 9/11. Lake County took the opportunity to teach students and adults about Our Everyday Heroes' jobs by having them visit classrooms, lunchrooms, and attending assemblies and programs. It was an opportunity to explain what Our Everyday Heroes are doing to protect them and that they are doing everything possible to ensure their safety.
- Organizations had special programs to honor Our Everyday Heroes. The week stood as a way for everyone to become aware of those who risk their lives on a daily basis. It was an excellent way to say "thank you."

"Using this as an example, I hope to find a national sponsor so all of Our Everyday Heroes can get their recognition for their courageous work they do everyday. I challenge any company or business to help."

Stefanie Vollmer

- Lake County notified the news media. They in turn informed the public of positive things Lake County was doing during the week to honor their hometown heroes. They even wrote articles about Our Everyday Heroes' courage and their love of protecting others as they still are.

The week's activities made people feel better by giving back to their communities in a positive way. Honoring Our Everyday Heroes Week was the right thing to do around the historical date of 9/11. It was much better than just reliving 9/11 and doing nothing. Children and adults will always remember what happened on that day. But now Lake County and Our Everyday Heroes will always remember what happened during that special week.

Our country is still under alert for more terrorist attacks. That is why I feel this special week is more important than ever to find a national sponsor. Everyone, not just Illinois, should be honoring our military, fire, rescue, emergency medical, police and public works departments during Our Everyday Heroes Week.

Fire Prevention Week is always around Oct. 9, due to the Great Chicago Fire. The National Fire Prevention Association turned this tragic event around into something positive.

Using this as an example, I hope to find a national sponsor so all of Our Everyday Heroes can get their true recognition for their courageous work they do everyday. I challenge any company or business to help, as this would be a great advertisement spot also. The historical events of 9/11 will not go away. Honoring Our Everyday Heroes Week turns it around into something positive.

This year Our Everyday Heroes Week is Sept. 7-13 for Illinois. Please take time during that week to say "thank you" to Our Everyday Heroes for their courageous work they do everyday. Take the time to get addresses of the military men and women overseas from high schools or places of worship. These heroes would love to get letters from their hometown. It is a small way to show how you care. Ideas are endless.
